A Detroit Solomon

CONGRESSMAN SUMMERS, business "dry" Republican from Washington, knows how to fix everything. He would put senators, diplomats, rich and poor violators of the prohibition law, "at work on the same rock pile."

Editors would go to the rocks, not so much for drinking as for "doing more to break down respect for law than all the anarchists that ever landed on Ellis Island."

MESSRS. OCHS of the New York Times, and Noyes of the Washington Star, and Dr. Barnum of the Los Angeles Herald, who find it hard enough to digest weak milk and seltzer, will be startled by this news.

MR. YEN, Chinese gentleman, formerly at Yale and Princeton, heads a movement to educate all Chinese, and starts, as he must, with an effort to simplify the Chinese alphabet. The best he hopes for is to cut down the number of characters to one thousand. To be REALLY educated in China you must know at least five thousand different characters with which to write.

PATIENT MOTHERS that have taught the 26 letters of our alphabet, to little boys and girls, will predict that universal education in China will proceed slowly.

Look at your Chinese laundry tickets and you will see what stands between China and universal education.

ETHELBERT STEWART, who gathers labor statistics for the government, demands "petting parks" in public spaces for working men and women.

"Nelly from the shoe factory can stand a little petting in a public park by Joe from the stockyards," or a the official. He thinks our laws governing the parks are too Puritanical.

Others will suggest that it might be well to persuade Nelly and Joe to set a good example before the so-called "upper classes" by refraining from physical demonstrations of affection in public.

IF SOLOMON looks down and watches Detroit he learned something last Wednesday.

REVERE MAN SLAIN IN RUM WAR

SENATOR BORAH SEES NEW WAR OF NATIONS IF U. S. JOINS COURT

Washington, Jan. 22.—Senator Borah, Republican, of Idaho, leading foe of the World Court, today launched a new attack upon American adherence to the international tribunal.

He warned the Senate that the court was on guard of the League of Nations, created to "enforce peace by force," and predicted a world embroiled in bitter war at no far distant date if the United States plunged into the "maelstrom of European jealousies and hatreds."

Arguing against the use of force to carry out decrees of the court, Senator Borah said such a step meant "war." At the Versailles peace conference, he said, President Wilson wanted League of Nations founded "on moral sentiment," but Premier Clemenceau wanted to preserve the old balance of power. The

5 ALARMS FOR $50,000 FIRE IN CAMBRIDGE

Fire, which started in the cellar of the four-story building at No. 522 Main street, Cambridge, soon enveloped the entire building in flames, and was threatening adjoining property when firemen arrived.

So great a headway had been made when the first firemen reached the scene that a general alarm was rung in, automatically bringing aid from the Somerville department.

The flames were discovered by a fireman in Engine Company No. 7, who saw the reflection of the blaze on the sky and turned in the first alarm.

The fire, starting in the cellar, soon swept up through an elevator shaft in the rear of the building, mushroomed and shot back to the four floors below.

Shortly after the first detachment of firemen arrived and just as a squad had been ordered to the roof the roof collapsed and carried down a portion of the sidewall with it.

The first floor is occupied by the W. W. Crocker Sheet Metal Works.

4,000-MAN CUT IN NAVY APPROVED BY HOUSE

Washington, Jan. 22 (A.P.)—The House today approved a section of the Navy Department bill providing for a reduction by 4,000 men of the navy's present authorized enlisted strength of 86,000 men.

Although the personnel was attacked by Representative Britten, Republican, Illinois, on the ground it would reduce the fighting strength of the navy, an amendment was offered.

In line been indicated by a number of members of the House naval committee that they will back Senate a fight on the provision, and defeated steps in today's the Senate.

RUM WAR ORPHAN AND SLAIN MAN

Arthur Parenti, No. 19 Fairfield street, Revere, slain by hijackers in a battle for rum at Natick.

Nancy Parenti, the three-year-old daughter of the slain man, not quite old enough to realize the tragedy.

SEALS LIPS IN DEATH TO SHIELD 3 FOES IN NATICK RUM BATTLE

Three hijackers from Revere and East Boston were buried today by the police of State, two cities and a town as the murderers of Arthur Parenti, 30, of Revere, father of two children, who was slain in Natick early today.

Before he died from three bullet holes drilled in his abdomen Parenti declared the three hijackers were his assailants, but when their names were asked he locked his lips on the identities.

"Never mind about that," he gasped to the police grouped about his bed in the Leonard Morse Hospital. "I'll get them. If I don't, somebody else will."

Parenti whispered that he was driving a Studebaker sedan truck through Oak street, Natick, when the three hijackers leaped on the truck, pulled the machine and compounded him to turn the vehicle over to them.

When Parenti gave battle, the hijacking trio shot him, dumped him in the snow-covered street and sped away with the truck.

Dying, the Revere man crawled to the home of Leo Boswell, nearby, and got the aid of Mr. and Mrs. Boswell, who had heard four or five shots fired.

They called the police, and when Parenti had given his dying statement at the hospital, the authorities of Natick, Boston and Revere, together with State Officers Sherlock and O'Neil, began a hunt for the slayers.

According to Parenti's sister, Mrs. Vincent Machione of Revere, he had been engaged in bootlegging for some time.

COPS CORNER 'COYOTE' IN NEWTON CLUB FIELD

An animal believed to be the missing coyote that escaped from the Franklin Park Zoo, was run to earth on the golf links of the Commonwealth Country Club in Newton today.

Apparently weakened by hunger, the beast crept into the shrubbery surrounding the links, and two policemen stood guard while an armed men from the Zoo were rushed to the spot.

George Scully of Newton Highlands was driving an automobile past the country club grounds on Kendrick street when he spied an animal resembling a sneaking dog on the golf links.

Hunger and fear had greatly taken heavy toll on the animal, seemed barely able to drag itself into the station. Scully telephoned the police and Patrolmen George Mullen and John McNeil were sent to the links.

They found that the beast was lying in the shrubbery with no disposition to move. Telephoning to the police station for permission to shoot the beast, one of the officers was told that men from the Zoo were on the way to capture it, and for him and his partner to stand by.

The officers reported that the coyote, if such it is, was too weak to put up a fight, and that would drive off dogs.

WOMEN AND BOY SAVE 4 FROM FIRE IN LYNN

With tender solicitude and love, that moved me as fire swept a tenement house at No. 12 Lynn street, Lynn, Mrs. Rexford McDermott stuck to her post at the bedside of her diphtheria-stricken husband until she had bundled him in sheets and then guided and supported him as he staggered through the black smoke filled corridors.

On the third floor another hero forgot his own welfare to save another. Fifteen-year-old Edward Donahue dashed through the smoke to the apartment of Mrs. Lillian Butler, my only, where he found the aged woman too feeble to flee the fire unaided. He took her to safety.

Mrs. McDermott, whose husband is in the home of a neighbor, where he was given medical attention.

The fire was discovered by Mrs. Florence Harden on the first floor, and she with her husband, Harold, warned the occupants.

Damage is estimated at $2,500.

WOMAN STRANGLES BOY, THEN HANGS HERSELF

Dexter, Me., Jan. 22 (A.P.)—After posing apparently strangled her five-year-old son, Cecil, Mrs. Charles W. Dwyer was found dead, hanging in a shed of her home, today.

A neighbor found the bodies. Mrs. Dwyer was known to have been in a nervous condition and, it is believed, killed her child and committed suicide while mentally deranged.

Entering the kitchen of the home with a bundle of clothing for the boy, Mrs. John Flagg happened to glance into a mirror on the wall and saw the reflection of Mrs. Dwyer's body hanging from a rafter in the shed.

Searching for the boy, she found his body lying on a blanket in a front room. There was every indication that death had been caused by strangulation.

Both had been dead about an hour, physicians said.

COAL BARONS BALK AT NEW PEACE PLAN

Philadelphia, Jan. 22 (A.P.)—The latest effort to end the coal strike has apparently blown up.

Anthracite mine operations made known here today that they will not re-enter negotiations with the mine workers to end the long suspension on the basis of the plan proposed by the Scranton Times.

President John L. Lewis of the miners' union announced earlier in the day at Scranton that he was willing to again go into conference on the basis of the latest proposal with certain suggestions to make.

According to the operators, the plan "did not meet any requirements of the situation."

Lewis' announcement followed a conference with Editor Linett of the Times.

The new peace plan, briefly, provides for the resumption of work immediately, a five-year contract, old wages scale to remain ineffect during terms of contract unless changed in accordance with the new agreement.

DAUGHERTY UP FOR REFUSAL TO ANSWER

New York, Jan. 22 (A.P.)—Harry M. Daugherty, former attorney general of the United States, was arraigned before Federal Judge Thacher today for failure to answer questions and to produce records under subpoena in the recent investigation concerning the American Metal Company.

Colonel Thomas W. Miller, former alien property custodian, and four German and Swiss citizens, as well as three German and Swiss corporations were indicted by the Federal Grand Jury in connection with alleged the conversion to the exclusive use of the property interest of about $7,000,000 of sequestered assets of the American Metal Company.

Daugherty was subpoenaed to produce records of the Midland National Bank of Washington Court House, Ohio, of which his brother is president. District Attorney Buckner said that when the former attorney general was asked before the Grand Jury whether he had brought the records, he wrote: "I refuse to answer because his answer might tend to incriminate me."

After all the facts had been presented, Judge Thacher directed Mr. Daugherty to answer all questions that had been put to him before the Grand Jury. Daugherty then went to the jury room.

TRIES TO KILL HIMSELF; ASKS POLICE TO DO IT

Two attempts at suicide to Edward M. Fossler, accountant, of Mt. Pleasant street, East Somerville, failed today, and then he asked policemen to end his life. While being taken to a hospital after drinking poison, Fossler asked Policemen Charles Fulton and Daniel O'Connell if they had their revolvers. They said they had. "Shoot me, then," the wood man pleaded. He said he was tired of living because he could not find work. Shortly before he drank the poison, according to the police, his wife, Mrs. Matilda Fossler, found him with a rope around his neck and tied to the arm of a chair.

Northampton, Jan. 22.—Members of the faculty and the student body of Smith College were surprised today to learn of the elopement of Miss Melba Simmonds, a sophomore, and Francis McGrath, Amherst graduate.

Miss Simmons, whose home is in Kingston, N. Y., left here, as her friends thought, to spend the week-end at home. Instead she went to Troy, N. Y. and was married to McGrath, headmaster of the Troy Country Day School.

The bride was the youngest member of her class, entering college at sixteen. McGrath is twenty-six.

HUB AIRPORT FRIENDS FIGHT FOR $10,000

Development of the Boston Air Port was asked today by a score of prominent men who appeared before the Legislative Committee on Harbors and Public Lands at the State House in support of an appropriation of $10,000 and extension of the State lease to the Federal government to twenty-five years.

Lieutenant Frank Harding, one of the World War fliers, was among those who spoke in favor of the bill.

The $10,000 would be used for runways and grading and extending the field. The existing lease to the Federal government has seven years more to run.

James T. Williams, Jr., editor of the Boston Evening American, said the committee "should approve" and that with Hartford spending $150,000 and other cities huge sums, Massachusetts should make an appropriation of $100,000. He favored the appropriation asked because it will at least make the runways safe.

Cleveland has raised $1,000,000 for an airport by floating a bond issue, the committee was told by Lieutenant Robert J. Brown, Jr., commanding officer of the Boston Air Service. "Planes are riskier at a time can use the runways as they now are."

Mr. Irving Bullard, president of the Colonial Air Transport, Inc., Gilbert G. Emerson, general manager of the Boston Airport Corporation; Professor C. P. Warner of M. I. T. and others spoke in favor, while Representative William H. Hearn of East Boston opposed it on the ground that commercial interests should make the future development.

AIR 'COLUMBUS' AT CANARY IS.

Palos, Spain, Jan. 22 (A.P.)—Three Spanish aviators started early today in the seaplane No Plus Ultra on the first leg of a flight for Buenos Aires and possibly New York.

The aviators are Commander Ruiz Franco, Captain Rois De Alva and Ensign Duran. The distance to Buenos Aires and New York is 12,325 miles.

Their first stop was at Las Palmas, Canary Islands, a hop which they made in about seven hours. The distance covered in this first lap was 817 miles.

Commander Franco, known as the "Columbus of the Air," hopes to link Spain and the Americas by the same route followed by the caravels of the ancient navigator.

The route mapped out was first to the Canary Islands, then southward to the northwest African coast and the Cape Verde Islands. From the Cape Verdes there will be a big jump of 1420 miles to Fernando De Noronhe, and then a short flight of 273 miles to the American mainland at Pernambuco, Brazil.

GARLAND, FACING LOVE CHARGE, WAIVES HEARING

Allentown, Pa., Jan. 22 (A.P.)—Charles Garland, founder of the "Garland Fund," alleged free love colony in Lehigh county, charged with misconduct, waived a hearing scheduled before Alderman William Bower today. Lawrence H. Rupp, attorney, notified the alderman today unnecessary publicity is given as the reason. The $1,000 cash bail remains as security. This will probably be taken up within a day or so and a real estate bond substituted.

FIRE CAPTAIN APPEALS RECKLESS DRIVING FINE

Horace W. Hutchins of No. 170 Hudson street, Somerville, a captain in the fire department of that city, in Cambridge court today was found guilty of operating an automobile so as to endanger the lives and safety of the public.

He was fined $100 by Judge Churchill. Appealed and was held in $200 bail.

EXPELLED STUDENTS BEAT UP INFORMER

Greenfield, Jan. 22 (A.P.)—William H. Gordon of White Plains, N. Y., and Franklin S. Smith of New York city, students at Mt. Hermon School at Northfield, were fined $25 each in District Court today for assault and battery upon Kenneth Miller, a classmate at the school.

The students, who were expelled by Principal H. F. Cutler Wednesday night for misconduct and escorted to the railroad station by a member of the faculty, secretly remained over night and attacked Miller.

The latter suffered a scalp wound, blacked eyes and general bruises, the latter caused by kicks, he testified today.

Principal Cutler testified that he tried to advise the young men following their expulsion and was told by them to "mind his own business."

The defendants pleaded guilty and paid the fines.

and Mrs. Prybyla, coal mother, of four-year-old Mabel Irene, both wanted the child. Judge Brennan could not pretend to cut the child in two and get information that way, but had what seemed a better idea.

A MOTION PICTURE machine and operator, hidden from sight, took pictures of the two women's faces as the judge solemnly announced his decision to send the little girl to an orphan asylum.

On the moving pictures Mrs. Gosson's face showed more grief, more "biological emotional reaction" the judge called it, than the face of poor Mrs. Prybyla. So Mrs. Goosen got the child.

THE REPORTERS are not convinced. They say emotion is sometimes not shown on the face, also that a child's real mother might be too much in earnest to display the proper waves of affection.

Or the adopted mother might even have been "tipped off" to "register love" the right way.

Everybody remembers the noble lady of ancient days, condemned to undergo the ordeal of walking on red hot ploughshares. Her friend, the good bishop, had the metal painted bright red, instead of heating it, and the lady walked barefoot through the ordeal in triumph.

BECAUSE MR. BURBANK is a "scientist," therefore wise, good people are disturbed that he should "see no proof whatever of the soul's immortality, nothing to indicate that when we die we go anywhere except into the ground."

In this case the deepest scientist may be overruled by the simplest man. This universe, our little corner of it at least, would be a preposterous, brutal joke, if this short life were to end everything.

A CRICKET by the railroad track sees no reason to believe that passing express trains will ever reach Chicago. He may even doubt the existence of any Chicago. That cricket's opinion means as much as that of the highest scientist, concerning immortality.

IF YOUR FAITH has been shaken by the estimable agricultural scientist, Burbank, you may find comfort in the words of a scientist infinitely greater, Charles Darwin. He said:

"Believing as I do that man in the distant future will be a far more perfect creature than he now is, it is an intolerable thought that he and all other sentient beings are doomed to complete annihilation after such long continued slow progress. To those who fully admit the immortality of the human soul, the destruction of our world will not appear so dreadful."

GIRL INJURED AS AUTO AND STREET CAR CRASH

Knocked unconscious when the second car, she was driving skidded and struck the rear end of a trolley at Salem street and Grant avenue, Malden today, Miss Mabel B. Landa of Rox. She later became hysterical and was removed to the Malden Hospital. The trolley, which was operated by Motorman Robert Wilson, was standing to discharge passengers. The impact of the crash threw Miss Landa against the steering wheel of the sedan with great force, and she was taken, senseless, from the wrecked machine.

HUNT SURGEON IN HEADLESS GIRL ENIGMA

Medic, Fla., Jan. 22 (A.P.)—Positive identification of the headless and legless body of a young woman found in a clump of trees near here is that of Miss Anna May Dietrich, thirty-four, of Norwood, Pa., was made by relatives, and police today searched for the missing head and tried to establish a motive for murder.

Alexander L. Schiff, a Philadelphia textile manager, told police the clothing on the dismembered body was that worn by his sister-in-law. He added that Miss Dietrich, who was employed by a Philadelphia publishing company, had been missing since Tuesday night.

Attendant at Schiff's home, Miles Frederick, was shopping in Philadelphia Tuesday with Miss Schiff, the pair were driven to church. Miss Dietrich had not been seen in either since.

An autopsy failed to establish the primary cause of death. The body bore no other marks of violence than a slight bruise, coroner's physician said, adding that he was unable to ascertain definitely whether the young woman was sane, or had died from natural causes. He expressed the belief, however, that she had been murdered.

The next machine in which the legs and head had been severed led police to believe someone well versed in surgery had done the job. The hair, ear veins and windpipe were so severed, police said, that the operation could have been performed only by an expert. They appeared convinced the girl was dead before her body was dismembered.

DR. LEGER JURY DISCHARGED

The trial of Dr. Alfred Leger of Boston, charged with illegal surgical operation in the death of Eva Algee of Framingham, came to an abrupt end in Middlesex Superior Criminal Court shortly after it had started today.

Upholding the contention of Attorney W. Jennings Patron, counsel for Leger, that Middlesex County had no jurisdiction in the case Judge George A. Flynn discharged the jury ruling that the government had failed to show the alleged crime had been committed in Middlesex.

Dr. Leger, whose office is on Massachusetts avenue, Boston, was arrested on an indictment.

After the jury had been drawn, Attorney Patron argued that the crime if any had been committed in Suffolk County.

Assistant District Attorney Robert T. Bushnell then made his opening for the State, after which Judge Flynn discharged the jury.

AGED MOTHER'S PLEA FAILS TO SAVE SON FROM JAIL

In spite of the sorrow he has caused her, an aged mother pleaded in Municipal Court today to save him from going to the House of Correction. She was assisted from the courtroom after a touching farewell when Judge Murray rejecting her plea sentenced Edward Barry of Meacher street, South End, and said to him: "You have apparently forgotten your mother, and I hope your sentence will make you more thoughtful of her and make you a better citizen."

Barry was given two months for stealing $12, a manicure set and an overcoat from Richard Blanchard of Shawmut avenue, after assisting Blanchard home from a party on December 12. Barry appealed but withdrew when Judge Murray threatened to make the sentence more severe.

Sen. Pepper's 'Coal Peace' Dies Aborning

Washington, Jan. 22 (A.P.)—Senator Pepper of Pennsylvania today announced in the Senate that the anthracite strike had been settled.

When advised later by the Associated Press of the operators' statement in Philadelphia denying there had been a settlement, Senator Pepper said his announcement was based on information from a source that he believed reliable.

He had been told, he said, that the operators had agreed to the Scranton plan for settlement last night and that the miners' assent today would end the anthracite suspension.

to make it it made any attempt to do so.

Some hours previously residents of Quincy received a scare when seven-year-old Frances Lima, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Lima, was attacked in the cellar of her home by a strange animal.

The child, hearing her pet dog bark as though in distress, ran downstairs, and rescuing the collie on animal resembling a dog leaped upon the girl's back, clawing and biting her.

She screamed, and her father ran to her assistance, picking up a heavy hockey stick on the way. He raised a shower of blows on the animal eventually knocking it through an open door, when it disappeared into the woods.

As soon as the story was told, there began a hunt, inspired by the Boston Evening American's offer of a $25 reward for the capture of the escaped coyote.

$65,000 LOSS IN CAMBRIDGE FIRE

the second by the Foss Candy Company, the third by the Graylock Candy Co. and the fourth by the Anchor Rubber Company.

Representatives of the four companies were soon on the scene and while no accurate estimate could be made on the loss it is roughly estimated that it will total about $65,000.

Fire officials declare the fire was started from an oil burning furnace in the cellar. It is believed an oil tank exploded after the fire started and gave the flames great impetus before the firemen could reach the scene.

Several hundred early morning workers rushed to the scene, started by the brilliant glow of a fire on the sky and the noise gathering fire apparatus.

They saw several narrow escapes when firemen were nearly hit by falling debris when the roof collapsed.

The men from Engine Company 7 had just started to the roof on extension ladders when the roof fell in with a roar and sent myriads of sparks skyward until the building looked like a Vesuvius in eruption.

It is believed the fire had been burning for at least three hours before it burst through the roof. Several passersby had seen smoke rising from the building some time before flames were discovered. They were under the impression that was steam and made no report.

Thousands of tons of water are being poured into the ruins from fire towers and many lines from lengths of extension ladders and it is believed the loss to all concerns will be total.

BOSTON, FRIDAY, JANUARY 22, 1926

GENERAL NEWS SECTION

BIG COPLEY SOCIETY BACKS IDEA

Noted Architect Drawing Up Plans in Secret; to Cost Millions; Need Legislative O. K.

Boston, the art centre of the world, is to have a beautiful civic centre, if plans now being drawn, and held in great secrecy, are carried out.

Dotted to the Arcess and located in the block bounded by Berkeley, Clarendon, Newbury, and Berkeley streets, the civic center will be grouped about a new public auditorium and convention building.

Another building considered to be in contemplation although the architect refused today to show or discuss the plans, is a horticultural hall, designed to rival the present Horticultural Hall in Massachusetts avenue.

UNDERGROUND LINKS.

Thanks to the buildings being stood to be in the main in a library of books and works devoted solely to the arts and sciences, insofar as the schemes have been on with secrecy.

These and other units of the civic center as designed, would cost several millions of dollars and all the units would be connected by subterranean passages, making it unnecessary to go out of doors in passing from one building to another.

In the auditorium and convention hall building the plans call for several smaller auditoriums to be used, as the big auditorium, for drama and spectacles of the street in an artistic scale and for public meetings.

COPLEY SOCIETY BACKER.

Filling a much needed want in the Hub, the civic centers, it is admitted, will give one more evidence that Boston is the nursery of the artistic, as it has been since civilization first came to America.

Back of the project, although still unofficially, is the Copley Society of Boston, composed of world-renowned artists.

One of its vice-presidents, himself a "well-known," is William T. Aldrich of No. 30 Newbury street, who is engaged in drawing the plans for the notable addition to Boston's art foundations.

He has visualized a group of buildings that will be the last word in structural beauty, monuments to the arts.

Before they can be erected on the site, however, the present buildings of the Museum of Natural History, the Boston University College of Business Administration and the architectural department of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology must be razed.

ONLY LIVING RELATIVE AND HEIR

Chicago's Woman of Mystery, Adopted 17 Years Ago, Last of French Family

Mrs. Waldo A. Learned, of Newton, is believed to be the only surviving relative of Mrs. Marie Crilley Sterling French, wealthy recluse, whose body was exhumed for examination by the authorities of Cook County, Ill., following revelations which enshrouded in mystery her death in the barricaded Park Ridge home.

Though the family connections which friends of Mrs. Learned declare, should prove her right to the fortune left by the recluse are some what distant, careful investigation by Boston Evening American reporters fail to reveal the identity of any other living relative in this State of the former Marie Crilley of Lowell.

These facts, however, have been ascertained by close scrutiny of files of Middlesex County Probate Court at East Cambridge.

That Mrs. Marie Crilley was left $5,000 in the will of Miss Georgetta French of Watertown, and that the remainder of the latter's estate, upwards of $15,000, reverted to Marie Crilley French upon the death of Mrs. Mary E. French, of Chicago, who was, it is believed, the daughter of Thomas French, famous Civil War veteran and wealthy Watertown contractor and mason.

That Marie Crilley Sterling was adopted by Mrs. Mary E. French in Chicago on Oct. 31, 1908.

That Georgetta French was a descendant of Thomas French and his wife, Mary Casey French.

That Mrs. Mary E. French became guardian of Miss Georgetta when Attorney Thomas Armstrong resigned that post in 1909.

Georgetta French is said to have been a cousin of Mrs. Mary E. French. As far as old friends are now able to recall, Georgetta French and Marie Crilley met and became attached to each other while both lived at the old Thomas French house in Watertown.

Georgetta French inherited a large portion of the French realty holdings in Watertown. Soon after Mrs. Mary E. French became her guardian, Marie Crilley, Georgetta's chum went to Chicago where she was adopted by Mrs. Mary E. French.

Mrs. Waldo Learned of Newton, who may assert her claim to the estate of the dead mystery woman of Park Ridge is a widow. She is now spending the Winter in Florida, where she has been appraised of the death of Mrs. Crilley Sterling French.

BLONDE GRILLED IN QUAKER'S BIG THEFTS

Two Lynn police inspectors, accompanied by plain clothes men of the Back Bay Station, went to a house in 87 Beulah street today, confident that a blonde stenographer employed in a Hub brokerage office could tell them the whereabouts of Edward B. Paige, missing Lynn church trustee.

It was Paige's love for the twenty-six-year-old blonde and his ill luck in the stock market that led to him embezzling more than $53,000 from two Lynn organizations, according to the police.

Paige is declared to have lost $70,000 in the stock market on his fortnightly pilgrimages.

According to the authorities the missing trustee, in whose accounts a total shortage of $53,000 has been unearthed so far, and for whom a warrant charging larceny has been issued, was friendly with the Boston woman.

Paige was trustee and treasurer of the Lynn Religious Society of Friends, treasurer of the Lynn Home for Children and treasurer of the Howard F. Poole Co., retail hardware dealers of Lynn.

He vanished on January 13 and this far auditors have uncovered $35,000 in cash missing from the Society of Friends and $20,000 in bonds and $5,000 in cash missing from the Children's Home.

The missing bonds were listed by the police today as follows: 2 bonds of the Kansas City Terminal Co., 2 of the Cleveland Electric Illuminating Co., 2 Detroit Edison Co., 2 Southern California Edison Co., 2 New England Power Co., 2 Maine Central Railroad, 2 Blackstone Valley Gas & Electric Co., 2 Detroit Electric Co. and 2 bonds of the Niagara Falls Co.

LOST BABY, LIKE ALL EVES, IS STRONG FOR HAT SHOP

Although only eighteen months old, Lillian DiNatale strayed from Lowell street into Merrimack street, West End, and was found asleep under a big hat in a millinery store while her mother was enlisting police aid in a frantic search. She toddled away when her mother left her sitting on the curb for a few minutes in front of her home at No. 87 Lowell street. After giving the baby a hat to stop her crying, the manager of the store told Patrolman James H. Leonard who took her home.

CLASH IN STRIKE OF GARMENT WORKERS

Violence broke out today in the strike of 700 Boston garment workers when a man said to be an official of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America and a raincoat manufacturer battled in front of the latter's plant.

The union man, exhibiting a bruise on his wrist, said he had been struck by an iron bar wielded by the manufacturer, threatened to swear out a warrant against his assailant tomorrow.

Four clothing factories are tied up by the strike ordered by the union. They are: The Trimount Clothing Company, Howard street; Commonwealth Clothing Company, Bedford street; Kingston Clothing Co., Harrison avenue, and the Royal Clothing Company, Washington street.

The union claims the strike was caused by wage reductions, while employers maintain workers operated under an agreement which will not expire until May 1. Pickets are posted at all four plants and efforts to carry the strike to other factories are being made.

SIX CLUBS REFUSED LICENSES BY COOK

Secretary of State Cook today refused club licenses to the Mystic Social and Athletic Club, Inc., Regal Social and Athletic Club, Inc., Mt. Lebanon Club and Valley Social Club, all of Lawrence, and the Syrian Independent Club and the Boston Naturalization and Athletic Club.

HIGH WIND ON RAMPAGE IN GREATER HUB

A high wind accompanied the coming of cold weather after the snow storm today, causing damage in several parts of Greater Boston, including the smashing of a plate glass window of the Moir-Grant gown shop on Boylston street, Back Bay.

Week-enders contemplating a Saturday and Sunday of Winter sports will find things much to their liking, says the weathermen, because of a cold wave sweeping from the West with New England as its objective.

Accordingly Boston and New England folk should find the mercury standing at some point between zero and ten above when they arise to-morrow, and it will be all the chilly, grow colder during the day, so that skaters, skiers and trustees will have their innings.

The coldest spot in New England today was Burlington with a reading of four above, two degrees cooler than Northfield, usually New England's coldest spot.

Storm signals are up along the coast from Sandy Hook to Eastport and the wind at Block Island had attained the strength of a 50-mile gale.

Two to four inches of snow in Worcester County today caused some delay to trolleys and busses. Bitter cold weather, with high wind, followed the snowfall.

In Montpelier, Vt., while the mercury did not reach the minimum that it did in Burlington, a high wind spelled zero. Winter and the three-inch snowfall added emphasis.

At Portland, Me., there was also a three-inch snowfall, and at Bangor six inches of snow blanketed fields and roads.

HAIR NO AUGURY OF BRAWN, SAY 'BOBBED' GIRLS

Somehow or other the bobbed-haired girls are always being lined up in comparison against the fellas with the more extensive tresses, and the latest from London is that the abbreviated heads are worn by the weaker sisters.

Such a quaint idea, according to the lady heads.

From London the stirring news was winged final proof of the short-haired sisters' lack of strength was rendered on the day of war, such to the long-haired ladies.

As if that meant anything. The bob-haired girls object. They have something on their minds that does their attention away from the contemplation of the fellows. "It was that lady I met at the ball last night, the weird wonder."

Thanks, quite the contrary, the short-haired misses put up another round the best-nose-being contesting of bob-haired girls who are champions in athletics and fitness, and long champions, certainly possess strength.

How about Gertrude Ederle for instance, the champion swimmer who is made a fool hare is this it self?

Then there are Katherine Arendt of Chicago, the girl who holds the American championship in the pool; Jo Drew Graebch Stone of Long N. J., record holder in the hundred and Josie Dean Henderson, the Lincoln Light swimmer. Helen Wills, tennis champ from California, and Carole Sable, whose records include some in the hurdles and high jump for women.

Mail a bit over that list of bob haired strong ladies.

HAIR GAVE SAMSON STRENGTH; MODERN GIRL ATHLETES HAVE MORE STRENGTH THAN HAIR

Hairy Samson to this day bears the record for masculine strength. His hair was his strength and his supreme achievement was, with hair restored, but blinded, when he pulled the pillars of the temple down upon those who baited him.

It was the deceitful Delilah who warned the secret of his hairy endowment of brawn from him and betrayed it to his enemies, bringing about the shearing of his tresses and with it weakness to the Biblical athlete.

The modern girl athlete is strong with a modicum of hirsute adornment as proved by Gertrude Ederle,

And also by Helen Wills, racquet champ, who is a glorious type of the up-to-date bobbed-hair queen of the tennis courts.

And that hair is no requisite to great strength and endurance as well as speed is testified by the achievements of these "bob" haired school girls, Etta Farwell, Esther Spargo, Rena McDonald and Hermine Imbescheid, relay champions.

While Lucille Sable shows hair is not essential to beating the law of gravitation in high jumping.

FACTS APLENTY FOR ESSAYS ON 'IRONSIDES'

Victories of Frigate Always Celebrated in Boston With Street Parades

In the opinion of Lieutenant Commander E. S. H. Beard, U. S. N., the young Americans of the public and parochial schools of Boston, as they buckle down to the task of writing "Old Ironsides" essays in competition for the fourth and fifth will discover many historical facts which, because they are connected so intimately with the Hub, amuse, astonish and excite them.

"One of the earlier commanders Brandt took a reporter for the Boston Evening American on the Navy Yard. "In that in the early days this Commonwealth maintained a Massachusetts Navy. Manned, and its own, and went out to sea to keep ships in line with the British. The last ship of the line was launched in 1775, for not until the young midshipman from Portland, Edward Preble by name, had an organized school been born the Protector and the Whitehall.

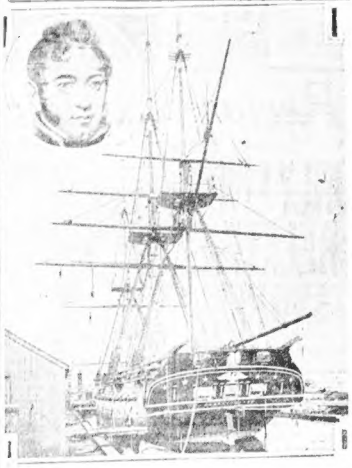
"A most interesting fact in connection with Old Ironsides, and one which will amuse and delight the young Bostonian, in the frequency with which, as we study her close on history, we come upon the name of Boston.

FETED MANY TIMES.

"That the ship was built here, that Paul Revere helped fit her out, and that her sails were made in the Old Granary building, is fairly well known, but little has been said about the number of times she returned from this port to mend the supplies of timber the inhabitants of the Boston of those days so kindly provided ago paraded up and down in her honor and banqueted her officers in Faneuil Hall.

"I am not going to tell any young Bostonian of the reasons that will be his, or hers, to discuss for all these things for himself, or herself, but it is of interest that on one occasion, when Bo-ton street Captain Isaac Hull and his officers

MOST CHERISHED RELIC IN AMERICA



THE CONSTITUTION. Aboard COMMODORE W. BAINBRIDGE, U. S. N.

"Old Ironsides" banquets were almost a custom in Boston 114 years ago. All her victories were celebrated. Commodore William Bainbridge was in command when she destroyed the British frigate Java off San Salvador.—Bainbridge photo from a painting by Gilbert Stuart.

paraded and Boston banquets in honor of the frigate Constitution and celebration of her triumphs were repeated within a few months.

"One public dinner in the Crab of Liberty was given in honor of in September 5, 1812. This one followed the destruction of the His Britannic Majesty's frigate, Guerriere.

SPIRITED BATTLE.

"Less than two months later, with Captain William Bainbridge in command, the Constitution put to sea again in company with the Hornet, and on the morning of December about thirty miles east of San Salvador, sighted two ships, one of which proved to be the 38-gun frigate Java. Her companion was an American merchantman, captured a few days previously.

"The fight between the Constitution and the Java is one of the most spirited naval actions in history. There is nothing in fiction, nothing in the movies, more thrilling.

"The Java was the third British frigate lost to the American Navy in five months. On the last day of February, 1813, the Constitution was back in Boston and Bainbridge landed to be saluted by the cheers of his countrymen. There was another procession of prominent Bostonians up State street, and another dinner, in celebration of another victory.

"Old Ironsides' had become very popular by this time, and when late in the Fall she had been thoroughly overhauled here in the Yard, there was no trouble in getting men to enlist for her. As a matter of fact, her crew was composed, with but few exceptions, of New England men.

LUCKY VESSEL.

"She had become popular, because she had established a reputation for luck and, as a matter of fact, whoever was her skipper in wartime history was ever so lucky.

"Her luck began with her launching in Hartt's shipyard, when twice she refused to move off the ways. There was a postponement of several days, and in the meantime more stable timbers arrived, which had been delayed in transit.

"Old Ironsides' luck continued in battle. She never was beaten. Scores of times, shot was rained upon her from every angle, yet never a one struck a spar or any other vital spot that would have put her out of commission.

"In 1812, she was chased by an entire British squadron for 60 hours, but not away unscathed. In this she reckoned a foe shore in a howling gale in the Bay of Biscay, riding within jumping distance of a rocky shore but escaping after a thrilling battle of three hours. In 1820, she went aground off Hieres, was pounded by giant waves for thirteen hours—and on the next day floated unharmed!

"These are only a few of her lucky exploits. No other ship ever had so many miraculous escapes as she. You know, will not sail on an unlucky boat, and yet today there probably is not a man in the world, or a lad either, anywhere else in seafaring work, who would not take a chance of a voyage on the Constitution.

"Her destruction would mean more than the passing of a patriotic institution. To sailormen, at least, it would mean the loss of the U. S. N.'s lucky mascot.

Commander Brandt, who is secretary of the National Executive Committee of the Save Old Ironsides Fund, believes the young people of the schools also will agree that it is intensely interesting that most of the heroes of the American Navy were at some time officers on 'Old Ironsides.' In the list appear the names of Stephen Decatur, Thomas MacDonough, David A. Farragut, George Dewey, Hull, Bainbridge, Preble and Charles Stewart.

2 JUICY PLUMS TO BRIER AND KINNEY

Frank L. Brier and William S. Kinney were standing in the City Hall garden today when Mayor Nichols shook a tree and two juicy plums fell into their hands.

Brier was appointed city treasurer at $5,000 a year, while Kinney was made institutions commissioner at $7,500.

Brier succeeds John J. Curley, brother of the former Mayor, who resigned a few days ago. Kinney succeeds Dr. David J. Johnson, who resigned today.

It was understood at City Hall that Mayor Nichols first offered the city treasurership to Eliot Wadsworth, banker and active Harvard graduate, former Mayor Andrew J. Peters, and Chairman Charles L. Carr of the Finance Commission, but all these men refused the post.

Brier is a former Representative and assistant District Attorney, former Register of Probate and a member of Mayor Nichols' ways and means committee.

Kinney is a lawyer and former assistant District Attorney of Suffolk County.

PLANNING CIVIC ART CENTRE FOR BOSTON

achusetts Institute of Technology, soon to expand.

LEGISLATURE MUST O. K.

Trustees of the Museum of Natural History are understood to be heartily in favor of the project, their only provision in its connection being that if the old museum is torn down a new and suitable structure to house the exhibits be erected in its stead on an acceptable site.

Legislative action is necessary before the project could be advanced to the construction stage as a financing program mapped out, as the designated location is state property, restricted to purely educational purposes, under which head, of course, a civic art centre would come.

The proposed centre would be an admitted addition to Boston's prestige in art and even the unofficial sponsorship of the famed Copley Society is a strong boost for the project.

Officers of this organization, known throughout the art world are: Hooker Albolt, president; William T. Aldrich and H. Winthrop Pierce, vice-presidents; Daniel O. Brewster, secretary; Frederick W. Coburn, recording secretary, and Alfred L. Fish, treasurer.

"Dime in Scenter" Gets Gotham All Smelly Welly

New York, Jan. 22 (A.P.)—A new type of slot machine is taking possession of New York. It is a dime perfume dispenser, and like its predecessor, the chewing gum or "Dandy" machine, it takes the coin and puts out its bit of sweetness.

Standing for another feminine invasion into the realms of commerce, the perfume slot machine is becoming as common in hotels, theatres lounges and beauty parlors as gum machines are at subway platforms.

Feminine wage earners at the close of a hard day, pause to put in their dimes and receive in return tiny glass tubes carrying the aroma of $29 worth of orchids or a dozen premiers.

BOSTON CHURCH 'UNION' HIT BY PASTOR

A bitter attack on the Greater Boston Federation of Churches, which has characterized as a "mongrel group," was made today by Rev. J. C. Massee, pastor of Tremont Temple.

In his noon address, closing the evangelical services at the Temple, he said the platform of the Federation was too broad for him to stand on.

"God hates the installment plan in getting religion," he said, "and I cannot stand it in business. Let me add, God hates, too, homeopathic doses of religion."

Dr. Massee condemned mixed marriages, and said that to accentuate differences of temperament in marriages is sure to bring about "some of the sad and disappointing features of inheritance from married life."

STATE SOLONS ASKED TO FIGHT WORLD COURT

Councilor Ward Quotes Evening American Editorial in Appeal

Aid of Democratic senators and representatives in the State Legislature from the eleventh district in blocking the injection of America into the World Court was asked today in a letter to the legislators by City Councillor Michael J. Ward of Roxbury.

In his letter, the city councillor quoted, as a strong argument, part of an editorial written by William Randolph Hearst and appearing in the Boston Evening American.

The letter follows:

OPPORTUNITY IS GREAT.

"I desire to invite your attention to the following extract from an editorial in the Boston Evening American:

"'There is a great opportunity at this moment for the Democratic party to come back into power and into popular favor by taking an attitude contrary to that of the Republican party and in harmony with the policies of the great Americans of the past, both Democratic and Republican, in harmony with the sentiment of the democratic masses, who have repeatedly expressed at the polls—the only effective place—their opposition to all plans of involving the United States in foreign entanglements.

"'Hundreds of thousands of Democrats left their party because their party wanted to make them and their nation violate the injunction of the fathers to keep free from entangling European alliances. Those genuine Democrats are ready to come back to their party if their party will take a truly Democratic stand on national and international policies.'

"I inclose a copy of a resolution which I introduced in the Boston City Council to memorialize Congress in opposition to the entry of the United States into the so-called World Court, and would ask that you protest to your Congressman against our country entering into any entangling alliances, no matter in what guise they are presented."

Wilson's Widow Hears Borah Rap Court

Washington, Jan. 22 (A.P.).—Mrs. Woodrow Wilson today heard the Senate debate the World Court. She occupied a seat in the Senators' private gallery while Senator Borah was arguing against American adherence to the court and assailing the League of Nations.

Mrs. Wilson was the guest of Mrs. Swanson, wife of the Senator from Virginia.

BORAH WARNS OF WAR IF U. S. JOINS COURT

Versailles Treaty, embodying the league covenant, was the result.

"Mr. Wilson believed that in time the covenant of the league would operate to modify the terms of the treaty," said Senator Borah. "M. Clemenceau believed the operation of the treaty would in time result in changing the covenant."

After quoting a statement by Aristide Briand of France, Senator Borah declared that eleven men in the League now are the sole arbiters of war or peace, constituting a "hideous combination of power."

He argued that the World Court is regarded abroad as a part of the League.

Drawing a contrast between the World Court and the Supreme Court of the United States, Senator Borah said the World Court depended on force to carry out its edicts while the Supreme Court relied on moral sanction. Use of force to carry out a Supreme Court decision against one of the States, he said, would mean war, and the same result would follow employment of armed force to carry out the edicts of the World Tribunal.

SEEK TO LIMIT DEBATE.

With a seven-hour session scheduled today and longer hours in prospect for succeeding days, advocates of American adhesion to the court waited and hoped that its opponents would talk themselves out and permit a vote, thus bringing up the tax measure.

Anti-court forces, on the other hand, assembled more argument material, hoping to force the court advocates to call quits and agree to first dispose of the revenue bill.

Both factions desire early action on the tax measure, but opponents of the tribunal are insisting it give priority on the calendar at the expense of indefinite delay in reaching a decision on the protocol, as desired by court opponents.

It was expected that an effort to limit debate would be made by leaders of both sides at tomorrow's session.

St. Brendan Society Votes Against Court

A resolution protesting against the entry of the United States into the World Court, branding that instrument as "the annex of the League of Nations," and declaring that it would mean the ultimate abandonment of the Monroe Doctrine, was unanimously adopted by the members of the St. Brendan Society at a special meeting held in Historical Hall, Pearson Building, evening, Jan. 24.30 .....18.75

WOMAN, BADLY BURNED, REFUSES MEDICAL AID

Springfield, Jan. 22.—Mrs. Julia Tuttle, 33 years old, mother of three children was burned about the lower limbs and body today when a liquid polish she was using in the kitchen stove exploded in her home at No. 92 Girard avenue.

Charles W. Lombard of No. 127 Marion street, a neighbor, hearing the woman's screams, ran into the house and found her in the kitchen with her clothing ablaze.

He put her into the yard, and extinguished the flames by rolling her in the snow. Her clothing was virtually burned from her body and she was suffering intensely, but she refused to accept medical aid.

SLUGGER ATTACKS NINTH WOMAN IN TOLEDO, O.

Toledo, O., Jan. 22 (U.N.A.).—Police today were faced with a renewal of the work of the "slugger killer." Miss Dorothy Burton, twenty, was beaten into unconsciousness by a man who followed her from a street car. The attack occurred in front of her home. Before the fiend succeeded, the girl screamed for help. Her cries aroused her father, who chased her assailant for several blocks, but the latter escaped.

Miss Burton is the ninth victim of the slugger. Three have died. While in this instance the girl's assailant used only his fists, police believe the slugger is a dangerous maniac.

NEGRO IS SAVED FROM HANDS OF DELAWARE MOB

Georgetown, Del., Jan. 22 (A.P.).—Harry Burton, twenty-four-year-old negro, in Bridgeville, Del., was spirited into the Newcastle County Workhouse early today after he had been saved from a mob in Southern Delaware by state and county officers. The authorities said Burton had confessed to an attack on a ten-year-old white girl and an attack on a negro woman. The white girl he left for dead. Sussex County was aroused by the attacks and a crowd of 250 men gathered at Georgetown last Labor Day night. Dispersed with difficulty, the negro had been moved.

FACTS APLENTY FOR ESSAYS ON 'IRONSIDES'

Victories of Frigate Always Celebrated in Boston With Street Parades

In the opinion of Lieutenant Commander E. S. H. Beard, U. S. N., the acting Commandant of the public and ceremonial schools of Boston, as they buckle down to the task of writing "Old Ironsides" essays in competition for the Hyder medals, will involve many historical facts while, because the commandant is an intelligent naval officer and a man, he would not overlook the human element.

"One of the commanders at Boot Camp is reputed to be a Boot. Having come to the Navy Yard, the Boot in the navy days was commonly substituted a 38 for a 45 caliber pistol, and its cost was deducted from his pay. The Boot usually was left-handed in everything, rather than the right-handed majority, and, of course, was a butt for many jokes. Instead of boots, he usually was issued canvas leggings, which were called 'puttees.' Boots were issued to the Petty Officers.

"I need information for my report in connection with our Ironsides, and one which will cover your question in the frequency with which the ships were alarmed by the approach of hostile fleets or the threat of bombardment of Boston.

FETED MANY TIMES.

"I am on the case and will have my Fan Reuel Hall, and will be made in the old fashioned way, is surely well known, and I will write you about the number of times the inhabitants of Boston of more recent years have turned out to welcome her home and honored her officers in Fan euil Hall.

"I am not going to go into your question of the cannon that will be on duty, or have to do service on the Charlestown Navy Yard, for myself, or herself. But it is of interest that one of our warships, when in the port, Captain Isaac Hull and his officers parades and Boston banquets in honor of the frigate Constitution and celebration of her triumphs were repeated within a few months.

THE CONSTITUTION (1803) COMMODORE W. BAINBRIDGE, U. S. N.

"Old Ironsides" banquets were almost a custom in Boston 114 years ago. All her victories were celebrated. Commodore William Bainbridge was in command when she destroyed the British frigate Java off San Salvador.—Bainbridge photo from a painting by Gilbert Stuart.

"One public dinner in the 'Cradle of Liberty' was given in honor of Captain Isaac Hull and his officers in September 8, 1812. This one followed the destruction of His Britannic Majesty's frigate, Guerriere.

SPIRITED BATTLE.

"Less than two months later, with Captain William Bainbridge in command, the Constitution put to sea in company with the Hornet on the morning of December 29, about thirty miles east of San Salvador, started two ships, one of which proved to be the 38-gun frigate Java. Her companion was an American merchantman, captured a few days previously.

"The fight between the Constitution and the Java is one of the most justified naval actions in history. There is nothing in fiction, nothing in the movies, more thrilling.

"The Java was the third British frigate lost to the American Navy in five months. On the last day of February, 1813, the Constitution was back in Boston and Bainbridge landed to be saluted by the cheers of his countrymen. There was another procession of prominent Bostonians up State street, and another dinner, in celebration of another victory.

"'Old Ironsides' had become very popular by this time, and when late in the Fall she had been thoroughly overhauled here in the Yard, there was no trouble in getting men to sail for her. As a matter of fact, her crew was composed, with but few exceptions, of New England men.

LUCKY VESSEL.

"She had become popular, because she had established a reputation for luck and, as a matter of fact, I suppose no other ship in marine history was ever so lucky.

"Her luck began with her launching in Hartt's shipyard, when twice she refused to move off the ways. There was a postponement of several days and in the meantime more stable timbers arrived, which had been delayed in transit.

"'Old Ironsides' luck continued in battle. She never was beaten. Scores of times, shot was rained on her from every angle, yet never a one struck a spar or any other vital spot that would have put her out of commission.

"In 1812, she was chased by an entire British squadron for 60 hours, but got away unscathed. In 1835, she weathered a lee shore in a howling gale in the Bay of Biscay, riding within dumping distance of a rocky shore but escaping after a thrilling battle of three hours. In 1839, she went around off Havre, was pounded by giant waves for thirteen hours—and on the next tide floated unharmed.

"These are only a few of her lucky exploits. No other ship ever had so many miraculous escapes. Sailors, you know, will not sail on an unlucky boat, and yet today there probably is not a man in the Navy, or a man engaged anywhere else in seafaring work, who would not take a chance of a voyage on the Constitution.

"Her destruction would mean more than the passing of a priceless inspiration. To sailormen, at least, it would mean the loss of the U. S. N.'s 'lucky charm.'"

Commander Brandt, who is secretary of the National Executive Committee of the Save Old Ironsides Fund, believes the young people of the schools also will agree that it is intensely interesting that most of the heroes of the American Navy were at some time officers on "Old Ironsides." In the list appear the names of Stephen Decatur, Thomas MacDonough, David A. Farragut, George Dewey, Hull, Bainbridge, Preble and Charles Stewart.

2 JUICY PLUMS TO BRIER AND KINNEY

Frank L. Brier and William S. Kinney were standing in the City Hall garden today when Mayor Nichols shook a tree and two juicy plums fell into their hands.

Brier was appointed city treasurer at $9,000 a year, while Kinney was made institutions commissioner at $7,000.

Brier succeeds John J. Curley, brother of the former Mayor, who resigned a few days ago. Kinney succeeds Dr. David J. Johnson, who resigned today.

It was understood at City Hall that Mayor Nichols first offered the city treasurership to Eliot Wadsworth, banker and active Harvard graduate, former Mayor Andrew J. Peters and Chairman Charles L. Carr of the Finance Commission, but all these men refused the post.

Brier was a former Representative and assistant District Attorney, former Register of Probate and a member of Mayor Nichols' ways and means committee.

Kinney is a lawyer and former assistant District Attorney of Suffolk County.

sachusetts Institute of Technology, must be raised.

LEGISLATURE MUST O. K.

Trustees of the Museum of Natural History are understood to be heartily in favor of the project, their only provision in its connection being that if the old museum is torn down a new and suitable structure to house the exhibits be erected in its stead on an acceptable site.

Legislative action is necessary before the project could be advanced to the construction stage and a financing program mapped out, as the designated location is state property, restricted to purely educational purposes, under which head, of course, a civic art centre would come.

The proposed centre would be an admitted addition to Boston's prestige in art and even the unofficial sponsorship of the Fine Arts Copley Society is a strong boost for the project.

Officers of this organization, known throughout the art world are: Hooker Abbott, president; William T. Aldrich and H. Winthrop Pierce, vice-presidents; Daniel O. Brewster, secretary; Frederick W. Coburn, recording secretary, and Alfred L. Pish, treasurer.

"Dime in Scenter" Gets Gotham All Smelly Welly

New York, Jan. 22 (A.P.)—A new type of slot machine is taking possession of New York. It is a dime perfume dispensary, and like its predecessor the chewing gum or "Daddy" machine, it takes the coin and puts out its bit of sweetness.

Standing for another feminine invasion into the realms of commerce, the perfume slot machine is becoming as common in hotels, theatre lounges and beauty parlors as gum machines are at subway platforms.

Feminine wage earners at the close of a hard day, pause to put in their dimes and receive in return tiny glass tubes carrying the aroma of $20 worth of orchids or a dozen premiers.

BOSTON CHURCH 'UNION' HIT BY PASTOR

A bitter attack on the Greater Boston Federation of Churches, which was characterized as a "mongrel group," was made today by Rev. J. C. Massee, pastor of Tremont Temple.

In his noon address, closing the evangelical services at the Temple, he said the platform of the Federation was too broad for him to stand on.

"God hates the installment plan in getting religion," he said, "and I cannot stand it in business. Let me add, God hates, too, homeopathic doses of religion."

Dr. Massee condemned mixed marriages, and said that to accentuate differences of temperament in marriages is sure to bring about "some of the sad and disappointing features of inheritance from married life."

STATE SOLONS ASKED TO FIGHT WORLD COURT

Councilor Ward Quotes Evening American Editorial in Appeal

Aid of Democratic senators and representatives in the State Legislature from the eleventh district in blocking the injection of America into the World Court was asked today in a letter to the legislators by City Councillor Michael J. Ward of Roxbury.

In his letter, the city councilor quoted, as a strong argument, part of an editorial written by William Randolph Hearst and appearing in the Boston Evening American.

The letter follows:

OPPORTUNITY IS GREAT.

"I desire to invite your attention to the following extract from editorial in the Boston Evening American:

"There is a great opportunity at this moment for the Democratic party to come back into power and into popular favor by taking an attitude contrary to that of the Republican party and in harmony with the policies of the great Americans of the past, both Democratic and Republican, in harmony with the sentiment of the democratic masses, who have repeatedly expressed at the polls—the only effective place—their opposition to all plans of involving the United States in foreign entanglements.

"Hundreds of thousands of Democrats left their party because they wanted to make them and their nation violate the injunction of the fathers to keep free from entangling European alliances. Those genuine Democrats are ready to come back to their party if their party will take a truly Democratic stand on national and international policies.'

"I inclose a copy of a resolution which I introduced in the Boston City Council to memorialize Congress in opposition to the entry of the United States into the so-called World Court, and would ask that you protest to your Congressman against our country entering into any entangling alliances, no matter in what guise they are presented."

Wilson's Widow Hears Borah Rap Court

Washington, Jan. 22 (A.P.).—Mrs. Woodrow Wilson today heard the Senate debate the World Court. She occupied a seat in the Senators' private gallery while Senator Borah was arguing against American adherence to the court and assailing the League of Nations.

Mrs. Wilson was the guest of Mrs. Swanson, wife of the Senator from Virginia.

BORAH WARNS OF WAR IF U. S. JOINS COURT

Versailles Treaty, embodying the league covenant, was the result.

"Mr. Wilson believed that in time the covenant of the league would operate to modify 'the terms of the treaty,' " said Senator Borah. "M. Clemenceau believed the operation of the treaty would in time result in changing the covenant."

After quoting a statement by Aristide Briand of France, Senator Borah declared that eleven men in the League now are the sole arbiters of war or peace, constituting a "hideous combination of power."

He argued that the World Court is regarded abroad as a part of the League.

Drawing a contrast between the World Court and the Supreme Court of the United States, Senator Borah said the World Court descended on force to carry out its edicts, while the Supreme Court relied on moral sanction. Use of force to carry out a Supreme Court decision against one of the States, he said, would mean war, and the same result would follow employment of armed force to carry out the edicts of the World Tribunal.

SEEK TO LIMIT DEBATE.

With a seven-hour session scheduled today and longer hours in prospect for succeeding days, advocates of American adhesion to the court waited and hoped that its opponents would talk themselves out and permit a vote, thus bringing up the tax measure.

Anti-court forces, on the other hand, assembled more argument material, hoping to force the court advocates to call quits and agree to first dispose of the revenue bill.

Both factions desire early action on the tax measure, but opponents of the tribunal are unwilling to give priority on the calendar at the expense of indefinite delay in reaching a decision on the protocol, as desired by court opponents.

It was expected that an effort to limit debate would be made by leaders of both sides at tomorrow's session.

St. Brendan Society Votes Against Court

A resolution protesting against the entry of the United States into the World Court, branding that instrument as "the annex of the League of Nations," and declaring that it would mean the ultimate abandonment of the Monroe Doctrine, was unanimously adopted by the members of the St. Brendan Society at a special meeting held in Historic Hall, Deacon Building, South End. The resolution was introduced by Jeremiah Carroll.

Copies of the resolution will be sent to every United States Senator, to Congressmen Gallivan and Tinkham, to Governor Fuller and Mayor Nichols. The resolution follows:

"Whereas, the same sinister influences which have imposed the so-called Southern and Northern governments on Ireland, and which sought to divide the United States in civil war into North and South, and now at work to get our country into the World Court, the annex of the League of Nations, which the American people have repudiated by a vote of over 7,000,000, and which fundamentally is a British scheme, and,

"Whereas, the entrance of the United States into the World Court and League of Nations would betray every American principle, tradition and interest. It would mean the serious weakening and ultimate abandonment of the Monroe Doctrine, which has protected this hemisphere from European exploitation. It would mean the revocation of such measures as the Japanese exclusion act and would release a clever European propaganda, directed by England among the Latin-American countries, to arouse suspicion and hatred of the United States, politically, racially and commercially.

"Therefore, as American citizens, we protest against the entrance of the United States into the hornets' nest of the World Court as a colossal betrayal of our patriotism, self-respect, liberty and independence."

WOMAN, BADLY BURNED, REFUSES MEDICAL AID

Springfield, Jan. 22.—Mrs. John Tuttle, 35 years old, mother of three children, was burned about the lower limbs and body today when a liquid polish she was using on the kitchen stove exploded in her home at No. 93 Girard avenue.

Charles W. Lombard of No. 127 Maple street, a neighbor, hearing the woman's screams, ran into the house and found her in the kitchen with her clothing ablaze.

He got her into the yard and extinguished the flames by rolling her in the snow. Her clothing was virtually burned from her body and states she was suffering intensely, but has refused to accept medical aid.

SLUGGER ATTACKS NINTH WOMAN IN TOLEDO, O.

Toledo, O., Jan. 22 (A.N.S.).—Police today were faced with a renewal of the work of the "slugger knife" Mrs. Dorothy Horton, twenty, was beaten into unconsciousness by a man who followed her from a street car. The attack occurred in front of her home. Before she lapsed into coma, the girl screamed for help. Her cries aroused her father, who chased her assailant for several blocks. She is the ninth victim of the slugger, who has struck in this city. Three have died. While in this area virtually turned from her body and states she was suffering intensely, but has refused to accept medical aid. It is a dangerous maniac.

NEGRO IS SAVED FROM HANDS OF DELAWARE MOB

Georgetown, Del., Jan. 22 (A.P.).—Harry Baker, twenty-four-year-old negro of Bridgeville, Del., was spirited into the Sussex County Workhouse early today after he had been saved from a mob in Southern Delaware by state and county officials. The authorities said Baker had confessed to an attack on a ten-year-old white girl and an attempt on a negro woman. The white girl has not yet died. Sussex County was aroused by the attacks and a crowd of 500 men gathered at Georgetown jail. Later the mob dispersed when convinced the negro had been moved.

YOUTH HOUNDED FOR CRIMES OF IMPOSTER

Young Chelsea Man Pleads With Police for Relief From "Double's" Life of Crime

"Hounded" by police inspectors of Boston and several other cities and towns for weeks, Isaac Sassonite, twenty-seven, of Chestnut street, Chelsea, told Chelsea authorities today of being a victim of a youth who poses as him in a constant round of automobile thefts, forgeries and other offenses.

The posing began, he said, when the other man stole his automobile driver's license (he commercial kind) that as a means of false identification. Captain Hurley, chief inspector of the Cambridge police, would a John Doe warrant for the impersonator.

Siskowitz said he has been accused of forging checks, stealing automobiles and non-payment of bills as a result of the fraud.

EASTMAN WARNS AGAINST HASTY RAIL MERGERS

Washington, Jan. 22 (A.P.)—Official approval of any plan of forced railroad consolidations was expressed to the senate Interstate Commerce Committee today by Charles Eastman of the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Speaking as an individual member of the commission, he declared a plan which would result in the fullest possible consolidations under the guiding hand of the commission, but added that there had been a tendency to exaggerate the possible advantages of great railroad consolidations.

SOCIETY WOMAN FIGHTS OFF THUG IN STREET

Milwaukee, Jan. 22 (A.P.)—Mrs. James R. Frost, Milwaukee society woman, fought off an assailant who seized her as she was returning to her home. She was uninjured. The attack was the sixth this week in Milwaukee.

PARKING FEE IS DECLARED UNAMERICAN

Scored by Autoists at Hectic Meeting; Deland Defends Mayor Nichols

A stormy meeting on Mayor Nichols' plan to assess automobile owners a fee for parking their cars in Boston streets was held abruptly at the office of the Street Commissioners today and postponed to 10 o'clock on February 17.

Most of the opponents of the measure protested that time had not been given to study the bill and assessments against it, and several intimated that the Mayor was attempting to rush through the bill, made in an ordinance.

After two or three antagonists had voiced this protest, Corporation Counsel Frank S. Deland rose to say that Mayor Nichols had no intention of hurrying the measure through, and, in fact, wished it to be given the fullest possible discussion.

Then it was agreed that the hearing be postponed to February 17.

Dan S. Hickey, secretary of the Boston Motor Club, made the most vitriolic attack upon the Mayor's project. He branded it as un-American, said that it would be a menace to Boston's business and would make the city the laughing stock of the country.

Challenged by Chairman Hurley of the commission, as to what was un-American in the proposal, Hickey answered, "Anything that interferes with the liberty of citizens by placing shackles on their right to do business is un-American."

Atty. Sidney S. Von Loesecke argued for the Automobile Legal Association, declared that the assessment would be a tax, not a license, and said that motorists are already overburdened with taxes. He also questioned the authority of the street commissioners to enact the assessment into an ordinance. He concluded by saying: "Every time the city is in need of additional revenue it goes after the motorist."

POLICE ASKED TO FIND MISSING BELMONT BOY

The police of several communities have been asked to search for Harvey Pearlmutter, thirteen years old, of No. 25 Gilbert road, Belmont, who disappeared from his home several days ago. The boy is described as being light-haired and of ruddy complexion. He wore a gray sheepskin coat, a dark hat, brown corduroy pants, black shoes and gray stockings.

36 OFFICERS CONDEMNED TO DEATH IN RUSSIA

London, Jan. 22 (I.N.S.).—A court-martial at Pskow, Russia, has sentenced thirty-five officers to be shot, and 144 others to life imprisonment for participating in a mutiny in White Russia, a Central News dispatch from Moscow says. Sixteen have already been executed.

Thirty-five Autos Burned

Skowhegan, Me., Jan. 22 (A.P.)—The garage of the Clough Motor Company on the Lakewood road in Madison was burned early today, together with about thirty-five automobiles. The loss was estimated at $70,000, of which about $20,000 was on the garage.

ICICLE HITS HIM, SUES FOR PAIN, WINS $9,141

Manchester, N. H., Jan. 22.—An icicle fell and hit Antonio Zindzis two years ago. He sued the owners of the building and a court has just awarded him $9,141 as compensation for the pain he suffered.

Remarkable Sale of a Nationally Known Maker's

5-TUBE RADIO SET

Complete With All Necessary Equipment!

$20 Bristol Speaker With Each Set!

The first four days of the sale were a tremendous success. We sold so many sets that we depleted our stock of Musette Speakers, which we featured as part of the regular equipment.

Rather than inconvenience those who want sets without delay, we have decided to substitute our $20 Bristol Loud Speakers as part of the regular equipment of this five-tube radio set.

Because of the low price at which this set is offered, the manufacturers will not allow us to announce their name nor have they placed their name on the instrument. At first sight you will recognize them as one of the leaders in Radio. At the sale price they are one of the greatest values ever offered in America. Buy one on the

We Sold 2500 Sets Made by This Same Manufacturer in Our Last Great Sale

Several months ago we created a furore in Boston, when we sold about 2500 sets made by this famous manufacturer. That set was the straight front model. Now we offer their brand new, sloping panel model, as illustrated.

Our Great Success in That Sale and the fact that we received so many letters of commendation, telling of the good results obtained by our customers, put us in a very receptive mood when we were offered the opportunity of again sharing in a similar event.

We Are Very Careful About What We Offer the Public

But from our satisfactory experience in the former sale, we did not hesitate, but were anxious to run this sale.

A Wonderful Set Without Frills

This set is remarkably easy to operate. Its three-dial control is precise, and you may tune out any local station with ease. Anyone can learn to operate it in five minutes. Once you have located a station, it may always be returned at the same place if the station is on the air.

You Can Buy on Hovey's Budget Plan

The set is a five-tube tuned radio frequency receiver, embodying two stages of tuned radio frequency, detector and two stages of audio frequency. It is built in a mahogany finish cabinet with low loss sockets, low loss condensers, low loss coils, formica panel and beautiful, highly polished dials.

These are the high-grade accessories which you get with this set for $64.98 complete!

BETTY ALDEN'S COMMENT ON SOCIETY

Small Dance for Miss Thayer Brilliant Festivity for Late in Season

A SMALL, smart and extremely brilliant dance in honor of Miss Mabel Bayard Thayer is a late February debutante festivity just being announced by Mrs. Bayard Thayer, mother of the lovely bud. It is arranged for February 18 at the Thayer Beacon street mansion, one of the town's palatial residences.

FROM GOTHAM THERE'LL come a small contingent of prominent folk, some to be house guests of Mrs. Thayer and others to scatter here and there under other hospitable rooftrees. Dinners will be a large and brilliant feature of the evening.

MESDAMES J. MONTGOMERY SEARS, Henry F. Sears, George R. Agassiz, Nathaniel Thayer and William Dexter (she was Constance V. R. Thayer) are entertaining. Mrs. Henry Sears' dinner is in honor of Miss Mabel Bayard Thayer, and Mrs. Montgomery Sears will have among her guests Mrs. Bayard Thayer and Miss Ruth Thayer.

QUITE LIKE A BEAUTIFUL young lady-in-waiting in attendance at some sumptuous court function was Miss Arthur Sewell 2d (Miss Anne Lane Warren), at her bridal ceremonial, celebrated with pomp and pageantry in the Church of the Reassurrection, New York.

A COURT TRAIN of silver cloth swung from the shoulders of a white velvet picture gown, built with long fingertip sleeves that ended in old lace cuffs. Bits of the spiders' lace, antique in tint and of untold value, were also inset in the gown. Billows of tulle veiled the stately gown and there was a bouquet of white tinged with purple.

ATTENDANTS WERE in peach color, their frocks, hats and shoes all done in that rosy glowing tint, and they carried arm clusters of butterfly roses and purplish-blue iris stalks. The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Herold M. Sewall, of Bath, Maine, and the late Mr. Sewall.

MRS. WALTER E. EDGE (Camilla Sewall) is the bridegroom's sister, and naturally there is a large Boston and New England interest in this brilliantly outstanding wedding. As Camilla Sewall Mrs. Edge (she married the United States Senator two or three years ago) was a handsome figure in Boston's younger set.

MR. AND MRS. ARTHUR SEWALL are sailing tomorrow from New York on the steamship Conte Biancamano bound to Italy for their honeymoon days, and on their return will establish themselves in New York, where Mrs. Howard K. Coolidge, the bride's mother, has a home in Park Avenue.

LEAVING THEIR housecoat, the "Roxanna" in Southern waters the Larz Andersons have said goodby to Miami friends and are wandering Northward in leisurely mood on mid-Winter travel bent, as is their usual pleasant custom these several years.

BERMUDA WAS FIRST objective on their semi-tropical route, then came the Bahamas which to the Andersons is a stamping ground well known and frequently visited. Various Southern resorts now in full Winter flourish have place on the itinerary, also those smart Carolinian colonies beloved of Bostonians.

IT'S A BIT problematical whether or no Mrs. Anderson will return in season for the Opera, where of evenings her toilettes and gorgeous jewels (many rare and remarkable gems repose in her jewel boxes) are always targets for feminine logistics and envy.

(Photograph by courtesy)

MRS. J. RANDOLPH KEAN, a former Bostonian, now living in Washington, where she figures prominently in the Capital's social activities.

HOWEVER, FAMILY representation will be conspicuously borne aloft by such strikingly dowered matrons as Mrs. Charles Goddard Weld and Mrs. Charles F. Greenough, 2d. The latter has been wearing a series of confections of the Supper Dances and at the still talked-about Assembly was specially attractive.

FOR THAT FUNCTION her costume was a rich affair of rose brocade with rose-design scarf draped upon the supple figure and outlining deeper tone in contrast. Mrs. Greenough, a consistent opera goer, is sure to be a shining figure in the young matrons set always in attendance.

SHE HAD EARLY Winter plans for a Californian trip, but Chanase therein kept her in town and of course much to the fore in the smart circle. The Greenough boys are at school in California, and last Winter Mrs. Greenough spent the entire season in the West.

A CHARMING FIGURE in tan crepe and taffeta, Mrs. Marion Kingsbury was very warmly applauded when she sang at the first of Richard Platt's musical afternoons. Sharing the afternoon honors and applause was a young pianist, Baldesarre Ferrazo by name.

MISS PAULINE DANFORTH, in black velvet touched with white (a gown of French smart simplicity), was a notable feminine guest at the Platt musicals and tea, which inaugurated his always pleasurable late Winter's series. Mrs. George Hawley poured.

BOSTON'S WELL KNOWN sculptress, Mrs. Anna Coleman Ladd (in private life Mrs. Maynard Ladd) is in New York visiting friends after a strenuous season of creative art and may, before return to her studio work here, go south for some weeks.

WORKS BY MRS. LADD are scattered all over the world, in private homes, gardens, galleries, both public and private. Her town house in Clarendon street boasts a large third-floor studio, where intimates are sometimes bidden to see a masterpiece in the making.

THEN, THERE IS the barn studio hidden deep in Magnolia woods, where Mrs. Ladd invites the muse to wondrous advantages, judging from her sculptures set about a woodsy dell or open slope just inside the rambling and rustic studio.

RECENT GUESTS at the Hotel Ambassador in New York, were the David T. Danas, of Lenox, with David T. Dana, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Endicott of Norwood, and James O. Sawyer, Mrs. Phillip Abbott and Laurence Abbott were at the Roosevelt.

PAINE COMPANY BACKS GARAGE PROJECT

Whiteside Leads the Fight for New 1,000-Car Back Bay Building

The proposed Park Square Garage, to house 1,000 cars, came before the street commissioners once more today, and counsel for and against it argued at length.

Attorney Alexander Whiteside, appearing for the Paine Furniture Company and members of the garage, was opposed by Attorney Elbridge H. Adriance, representing the Park Square Real Estate Trust and William J. McDonald, owner of much of the land abutting on the proposed site.

Whiteside brought a sharp denial from Anderson when he said that McDonald's objection was because McDonald "had for years a dream of making the section a department store center," and that the "dream" was impracticable.

Anderson said that legally the street commissioners cannot grant the permits because the law says those seeking such permit must own the property. He said that the Paine Furniture Company, one of the proponents of the garage, owned a seven-foot frontage on Stuart street, but this was obviously not large enough for a 1,000-car garage.

He termed the garage project "a black business," and compared it as a slaughter-house beside a first-class development. In that it would reduce the character of the surrounding property. He said that the Boylston Street Merchants' Association was against the project as well as many individual owners of land nearby.

Attorney Whiteside said the arguments against the garage might have been good six or eight years ago, but that now a garage is a necessity to a business district and a boon to development. He said that the garage would be so built that if the character of the section should change it could be easily converted into an office building.

SUSPECT PLOT TO KILL KING ALEXANDER

Five Hundred Have Been Arrested in Raids on Communists in Jugoslavia

Belgrade, Jugoslavia, Jan. 22 (A.P.)—Discovery of a plot against the lives of King Alexandria and his Cabinet ministers is believed to be behind the sudden decision of Premier Pachitch to return from the Riviera, where he went on January 10 for an announced lengthy stay for his health.

The police are continuing their widespread raid upon the homes of known Communists and the number of persons arrested had increased today to 500.

The plot against the King and members of the government is said to have been revealed by the arrest of a workman in Zagreb. The man was spending money lavishly, boasting that he had received 250,000 dinars from Moscow as part payment for the work to be executed.

He declared, according to the police, that he received the funds through M. Philipovich, a leading Jugoslav Communist, who for the last year has been a resident of Moscow.

Police Chief In Florida; Justice Out of Luck

"Sorry, Chief's in Florida. Nobody gets his mail."

This was the answer East Boston District Court officers got today when they called Hall police headquarters to ask why summonses mailed some time ago were not served on two Nantasket men.

The summonses were for Percy and Frederick Penfold, charged with failing to support their aged mother, Mrs. Edith Penfold, of Winthrop. The men were supposed to appear in court today.

Judge Barnes issued new summonses. They will be mailed to the officer in charge at Hull.

DEATH WINNER AFTER ALL

Spinal meningitis today claimed Francis H. Hastings, 30, as its victim at Worcester City Hospital, in spite of the effort made to save his life by raising serum from the city. Hastings, formerly of Lowell, died today after lingering a week.

Hastings' life, it was hoped, had been saved by the serum that was sent by special messenger to the dying man. When it was found there was no meningitis serum in Worcester, an appeal was made to Boston City Hospital and Dr. Robert M. Coleman, night superintendent, sent a messenger hurrying to Hasting's bedside.

ELKS SILENT IN PAWTUCKET BOOZE CASE

Lodge Officers Refuse to Comment on Suspension of Charter by Judge Atwell

Pawtucket, Jan. 22.—Due to a violation of the Volstead Act, the charter of the Pawtucket Lodge of Elks was suspended for a period of sixty days by Judge William H. Atwell of Dallas, Tex., grand exalted ruler of the Elks.

A complete change of officers of the Pawtucket Lodge will be required by Judge Atwell.

This is the second action of importance taken by the grand exalted ruler, the charter of the New York City Lodge having previously been suspended for thirty days after the Columbia Hace podcasted the bar of the New York Elks' club.

The only comment William W. Woodcock, exalted ruler of the local lodge, would make was to confirm the report that the suspension was caused by an alleged violation of the Volstead Act. Judge Atwell assigned this as the cause, but State Deputy James N. Shriver, who made the investigation for the national chief of the order, refused to give the reason.

A member of the Pawtucket lodge said that the sale of home brew at a meeting last June caused dissension among the members. A meeting was set for tonight when Woodcock's resignation will be demanded.

TEA AT 'ARVARD! DRINKERDOWN!

Dr. Alfred Worcester, professor of hygiene at Harvard, doesn't welcome any "flip toters" at his office; but he is not backward in asking his Harvard compatriots to drop in for a "flip" of his own latest brew.

At five o'clock every afternoon in Wadsworth House, the doctor has his little drink; and he has no member of his department, chiefly recruited from the physical education force from drowning as much as one can hold.

As he subsequently feeds his guests towards the door, the doctor extends an invitation to come again and have "some more."

Dr. Worcester says daily teas provide the best means he knows of for bringing members of an organization together around a table and starting up any little differences between them.

The doctor discovered this fact while abroad in charge of a medical unit, and he has adopted it in his work at Harvard. His young women secretaries prepare the brew.

Woman Succumbs to Burns

THE THEATRE

Here and There

New Deal at State
Stage Features
Spitalny Conducts
Green Room Club

—By NICHOLAS YOUNG—

STYLES are forever changing—even in the theatre. To keep pace with the new modes in theatrical effort, Marcus Loew proposes to exhibit a completely renovated program at his favorite State Theatre next Monday—a program designed to catch the eye, hold the ear and generally stimulate the senses of his customers. At least, that is the way it is described by the avant courriere, Mr. Joe DiPesa of the Marcus Loew operating staff.

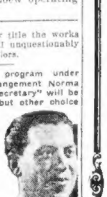
Louis Sidney

AS the new fashion of the bill is to be custom made down to the last stitch, let's meet the tailor. He is Mr. Louis K. Sidney, chiefly distinguished among those who flit thither and yon in the drama, as the big, but younger, brother of George Sidney, whose Jewish comicalities on the spoken stage have carried him all the way from the most modest of burlesque to the top peak of favor and electric lights in the drama that sells for $2—and sometimes for $3.

ANYWAY, George is a satisfying comedian and, by the same measure, Louis is a producer and designer of even greater worth—once more quoting Mr. Joe DiPesa. In any event there is a new deal in prospect for the S-tate next Monday and Louis K. Sidney is its proud male parent. The change in policy has involved more than a redesign of the basic program, for in order to bring to the state special dramatic and spectacular features structural alterations have been made that give the State the largest operating stage in New England.

Many Changes Promised

UNDER the new style of program the State will present first-run pictures with a background calculated to stir the dullest imagination. Of course, there will be a proper presentation for each new film, only the management insists that it should be listed as an incidental stage offering—not presentation. Under any title the works of Mr. Sidney will unquestionably take on glowing colors.



Philip Spitalny

FOR the first program under the new arrangement Norma Shearer in "His Secretary" will be the film feature, but other choice bits of novelty will be included in the bill. Vaudeville acts of outstanding merit will be found in good spots, artists drafted from the operatic and musical comedy stage will occupy interest corners, and Philip Spitalny's spirited jazz orchestra will scatter a new assortment of boaxing tunes over the proceedings.

MR. SPITALNY comes to Boston as guest conductor of the newly organized orchestra. The master of the new styles in popular melody, he has gathered fame to himself by showing that the classical program and the jazz have much in common. He plays delightfully in either style, though a leaning toward the popular forms of modern music has really established his splendid reputation as a concert conductor.

NUGENT STEPS OUT—At the next meeting of the Boston Green Room Club, to be held at the Copley-Plaza next Tuesday afternoon, Elliott Nugent, co-author and star of "The Poor Nut" at the Hollis, will be the guest of honor. Guy W. Currier, president of the club, will be the hostess, and will be assisted by Mrs. Malcolm R. French and Mrs. Robert Hoffman.

A Live Serial of Love and Temptation Right Here In Boston

READ THIS FIRST

FLOSSIE and MARY ROSE MIDDLETON are two pretty sisters, the daughters of a widowed mother. They work for Dexter & Co., big Congress street bond firm.

Mary Rose is secretary to the sales manager, JOHN MANNERS, and is in love with him. He is engaged to marry DORIS HINIG, an heiress. Because of her feeling for him Mary Rose repeatedly refuses to marry TOM FITZROY, young dealer.

Flossie is carrying on a flirtation with the head of the concern, HILARY DEXTER, although she's engaged to SAM JESSUP, Dexter's secretary.

One day Mary Rose comes upon Flossie in Dexter's arms and when she scolds Flossie, the girl brazenly tells her it's not her fault she's so attractive to men. And she accuses Mary Rose of trying to lure Manners from Doris, who has become very jealous of her. Last Manners tells Mary Rose that he loves her, and explains how he and Doris drifted into an engagement that now means little to either of them.

Mary Rose is in Dexter office. MRS. DEXTER bursts in upon them and accuses Mary Rose of trying to lure her husband. She hysterically accuses Mary Rose of having been Hilary Dexter's sweetheart before his marriage. Flossie, who has overheard Mary Rose told Doris about the affair, is amazed when she learns the truth. Mary Rose tells Flossie how she was engaged to Dexter before he married Doris, but when she learned that he had married her only for her money, she left him. Dexter begs her to forgive him, but finally persuades her to leave quietly. Flossie must have had a case on the girl whom she was to "scoop" when Dexter discovered them the day before. Later, while Mary Rose is at work, Flossie leaves the room, and Mary Rose, coming back, finds a letter in unfamiliar handwriting.

"On a day when the air is chilled by the wind of winter, when hunger calls for quick relief, is there anything that touches the spot quite like hot soup—at Waldorf?

"Soup of substance and quality—a succulent blend of the best fresh ingredients (none canned)—made under conditions that are sanitarily perfect — cooked in double-jacketed aluminum kettles—and permitted to simmer for hours in the evenly-regulated heat of steam.

"Here, friends, is soup for you—soup over which you can honestly enthuse. And variety enough to satisfy your natural craving for different kinds from day to day.

"For good, hot soup—soup that nourishes and satisfies—come to Waldorf."

INTERNATIONAL RADIO WEEK--A Step in the Direction of Promoting Better Understanding Between Nations

A few weeks ago the radio audience of a large part of these United States heard voices and music from Europe.

This radio program came direct to the living rooms of hundreds of thousands of American citizens. There were no toll charges, no strings to the privilege, and practically no difficulty in tuning in the station.

Few there were, upon hearing the voice of that British announcer, who did not receive a thrill—not only a thrill at the great distance which had been traversed—but an even bigger thrill over the realization that radio had proved its worth as an agent of peace and good will.

International Radio Week is now about to appear. This is the time set aside each year for radio listeners in various parts of the world to attempt the establishment of direct communication with their brothers across the sea. In order to facilitate this procedure, local broadcasting stations will maintain specific "silent" periods

In all parts of the land, men will be tuning in with different types of receivers, trying to establish contact with distant points. The result of such activity naturally will tend to bring out the best that is to be had in radio equipment To be sure, everyone knows that some locations are better than others for long distance reception. With this knowledge in view several newspapers have established listening posts at points which are believed to be advantageous

The Boston Evening American has made arrangements for the erection of a special receiving station at Pembroke Mass., where a corps of expert operators will keep the night over the East and the West

Several different types of receivers will be tried out. It is expected that results will be obtained, which will show why one type is superior to another, under certain conditions.

Various types of antennae will be tried out during the week. Boston is the wire which is as long as the width of the receiving d

Daily reports of results obtained will appear in the Boston Evening American, so that listeners may be advised as to just what to look for. Special messengers will automobile for Boston before sunrise, carrying the reception results into the offices of the Boston Evening American in time for the first edition.

A word of advice to all owners of radio sets is fitting at this time Please remember that the average vacuum tube receiver is one of the most delicate known to science. This Marks the End of Your Search for a Really Fine Radio Set

This Year's 6-Tube Model

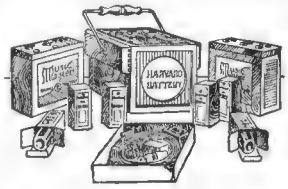
Music Master Half Price

Last week it was necessary to continually reorder Music Masters to meet the demand of those who realized that their search for a good radio set had ended

87.50 Loud Speaker Built In

22.50 Down 2.50 a Week

Instead of The Universal Price Of 175.00



Half Price

Equipped or Stripped

In order to carry out this sale to its fullest extent of service in the true Shepard way we have arbitrarily reduced standard equipment for the Music Master No. 175 to one-half price. This reduction can only apply when the set is bought completely equipped.

As far as we know, this is the first time these high-priced accessories, recognized as the standard, have been made available at anything less than the regular list prices.

Thus you can save exactly the amount you pay for the Music Master in this sale, whether you buy the set equipped or stripped.

The Set Equipped
108.00 24.00 down 3.00 a week
Instead of 216.00

The First Highest-Type Set Offered at Such a Price

There have been many Radio Sales and some great values in them, but to our knowledge none have had to do with any of the foremost sets of the country, such as this.

The Music Master, so widely advertised nationally, has held a recognized place of excellence at the top of Radio achievement. Naturally the price was greater than the majority of sets and but comparatively few could afford such luxury. Now, however, we have broken down the barrier to thousands who have wanted this perfection.

You Can Now Settle Back to a Winter's Enjoyment

Wonderful broadcasts are in store for you this Winter—famous artists are scheduled to give the finest entertainment the country knows—Opera, Concerts, Addresses, Occasions of National Importance. One only needs a really good radio set to enjoy it all, and here it is—the Music Master—at half price!

This Year's Model

Don't make the mistake of thinking that this is an old-timer trading [illegible] the rear of radio progress. Actually the [illegible] about two months ago and it has [illegible] to get deliveries in any quantity up to [illegible]. It is the latest development of Music Master receivers. The fact that it did come out so late—[illegible] production really hit its stride to meet [illegible]—Conditions was over and the big market gone, explains why it is that we can make this offer now.

Half the Actual Current Price

There is no question as to the amount of reduction—no backing back to [illegible] prices from old established long since forgotten—[illegible] like this set now at precisely one-half the price you would have had to pay up to last week for it—a clear saving of exactly its present price. And we have included equipment to carry out the idea.

Tube Assembly of Perryman Type R. H. 201-A

Notice this new type of tube assembly. The element, plate and grid are held in permanent parallel alignment at the point of greatest efficiency by two bridges. You can't shake them apart. Perryman Tubes not only deliver the greater efficiency possible, but deliver it for the unusually long period of time

ALL TYPES $2.50

George H. Perryman has been making vacuum tubes for ten years during which time he has directed two of the largest plants in the country. He has built four tube-making plants. He knows the faults and virtues of practically every tube on the market. He knows tubes as few know them. All his experience is built into these new tubes which bear his name.

Perryman Radio Tubes are superior. You can see their advantages immediately through the clear glass of the demonstrating tube that we supply every dealer free of charge to show you exactly what you're buying; exactly why they are superior; why they will stand the gaff indefinitely, and why they are worth $2.50 down to the last penny.

DX Conditions Last Night

It was impossible to check up on receiving conditions in my neighborhood last night on account of a bad noise which shut out everything but local stations. This noise was at a sixty cycle pitch and must have been caused by an electrical accessory operating from somebody's light socket. I wonder when the government will provide "Radio sleuths". $60 The Worlds Greatest Radio Receiving Set ~with built in Loud Speaker

INTERNATIONAL RADIO WEEK—JANUARY 24-30

During this week, the great broadcasting stations of the British Isles and the European Continent will transmit special programs for the benefit of American radio fans. All America will be listening—American broadcasting stations will remain silent when Europe is on the air.

Thousands of verifications received by Freshman Masterpiece owners, proved conclusively that they were successful in tuning in European stations during International Radio Week of last year.

Freshman Masterpiece five tube receiving sets are now equipped with the new Freshman straight line, wave length condenser, with vernier adjustment, which assures hair-line selectivity, and permits you to tune in stations you want without interference, over the entire broadcasting range. This and many other new and improved features will enable owners of the Masterpiece to get the best possible reception of the foreign programs.

Model 5-F-5, illustrated above, is encased in as heavy a five-ply genuine mahogany cabinet as ever graced any radio set. A loud speaker of great volume and superb tone is built as part of the set itself.

Sold on Convenient Terms by Authorized Freshman Dealers, who also Install and Service them.

Write for 24-page illustrated booklet full of useful information for all radio fans.

MEMORIES

IN COUNTLESS poems have poets sung of memories—the beasts of memories and the torture they can be.

Was it Dante who said that to remember past happiness is hell upon earth?

Is it? I wonder.

Personally I cannot help thinking that the more beautiful memories we have the better armed are we against the adversities of life and especially against the dreariness of old age.

I do not think we ought often regret for the past to clog our feet and make us forget the needs of the present. Even old age looks sindingly down upon youth with its joys and its poignant pains, and instead of envying youth or being jealous and sad, it has a gentle feeling of sympathy and understanding because of the memories stored away in its own heart which the sight of the young ones awakes.

Time has appeased both pain and passion. Even sorrow fits rightly into the plan of things—had its reason, was the shadow needed to make the bright lights more luminous.

No doubt there may be torture in remembering past glories, past riches, past loves, for the one who has seen all he loved torn from him or destroyed. Yes, then remembrance must be fiery torture. But we are not writing of extreme cases, which, thank God, are rare. Let us speak rather of the underneath life of every day.

Memories ought to be a joy for they mean richness of life. They should be treasures to carry around with us everywhere, treasures that neither moth nor rust nor thieving hands can take from us. They should be sacred and sanctifying influences against the cold dark days that come to all.

Memory is like a tune that runs through life, sometimes sad, sometimes gay, accompanied to our thoughts, the light and shade added to our vision of things. Memory helps us to sympathize with others. We see ourselves in them, we vibrate to emotions not our own.

Memories should bear us good company always. They are the souvenirs of experience. And all experience is good if we will only use it so.

Love Story of a Boston Girl

[illegible] ...mply as words [illegible] ...ld [illegible] ...ldn't [illegible] ...ld forfeit my friendship if you do."

For a moment Mary Rose felt a strong impulse to tell her the plight of the matter—how it had not been she but Flossie who had roused the righteous anger of Hilary Dexter's wife.

Mary's Dilemma

She liked Miss Minnick, and she hated to let her think that she was the kind of girl who would run around with a married man. But she also hated to let [illegible] Flossie was that kind of [illegible] and, as it was, Flossie had [illegible] good a reputation in the office.

"I'll make sure that John Minnick has heard the story, first," she made up her mind at last. "If he's heard it, I'll have to tell him the truth about it. I couldn't have him think I was cheat—"

For the rest of the office didn't really matter so much, did they? After all, what difference did it make what they thought about her? And yet Mary Rose knew that it did make a difference, and a big difference. No one wants to be thought badly of. Especially a woman who knows that a good reputation is worth its weight in platinum.

With a sigh Mary Rose threw a resentful sidewise look at Miss Minnick's haughty face, tucked Flossie's handkerchief and vanity case into the pocket of her dress and went upstairs.

She found Flossie and Sam seated at the table in the midst of a great confusion. Papers and books were piled on chairs, window sills and upon the tops of steel filing cases.

Getting things straightened out yet?" Mary Rose asked.

Flossie gave him no chance to answer. No, we're having a grand time," she said hotly and swung around on the [illegible] her slim legs in their thin stockings. Her face flushed and her eyes sparkled with anger. "Sam's doing nothing at me again about getting married."

Mary Rose gave a half-laugh.

"You talk as if he were insulting you, Flossie," she said.

"Doesn't she?" Sam appealed to Mary Rose as he sat by. "You'd think I didn't have a right to ask the girl I'm engaged to to get married—"

"And you haven't even had the [illegible] almost insisted at him, in her fury, "not on $50 a week, just look at it. How in the world can we think we're going to get along on $50 a week?"

Life for Two

"Lots of people do it and live well, too," Sam answered her mildly. "Six months ago when I was getting $40, you said you'd take a chance when I was making $50. You remember."

Flossie smiled a secret, scornful smile at him. "Six months ago—see," she said, and her voice was liquid silver again. "But I've changed a lot in a few months. I've been looking around and—I've seen things I want. Things that you couldn't begin to buy me on $50 a week!"

Sam stared at her, his mouth working. He adored Flossie. Mild [illegible] Flossie type of girl who is nothing [illegible] she was the only girl in the world.

"What things, Flossie?" he asked [illegible] Flossie tossed her head with its golden shimmer of curls. She didn't answer.

But Mary Rose knew exactly what she meant. She meant the things that Hilary Dexter had given her—French perfumes and American Beauty roses, $20 dinners [illegible] suppers at [illegible] She knew that he had created in Flossie an unquenchable desire for [illegible] and had tasted luxury and was satisfied with the paltry gifts of Sam no longer.

As Mary Rose's fingers found the [illegible] she felt [illegible] little in the pocket of her dress, she hated Hilary Dexter as she never had hated any one in all her life.

Encouraged by Flossie's silence Sam began again boldly. "We could get a four-room flat somewhere—"

"Four-room flat!" Flossie broke in [illegible] "I won't live in a four-room flat. I won't live in a [illegible] flat. After a while you'll be down to two rooms up over a garage, I suppose. Well, you can live in 'em, yourself. Because I won't marry you. I won't—do it."

Flossie's Scorn

Her voice was suddenly as cold and measured as the slow dripping of an icicle.

Sam looked helplessly at Mary Rose. "I don't know where she's going to find anybody with more money than I have," he said, with pathetic pride. "There's not a fellow in our crowd who makes $50 a week—"

Flossie's scorn of their "crowd" was in her voice when she answered him. "In our crowd!" she sneered. "In our crowd! Don't you suppose I know my own position in my crowd?"

Sam looked at her and he seemed to forget that Mary Rose was there in the room with them. He got down from the table and [illegible] Flossie in his arms. For a moment she melted against him and raised her mouth, that was just the shape of a kiss, against his mouth. Then she pushed him away, with a harsh little laugh and a shrug of her perfect shoulders.

"Oh, I like you, right enough," she said carelessly, "but I'm no going to marry you—"

She turned to Mary Rose. "Think of the nerve of him! He wants to get a marriage license today! I wouldn't that knock you for crepe? Mary Rose turned to Sam. "Sam will you let me talk to her for a minute?" she asked. "Alone?"

"There's no use in talking to me. My mind is made up." Flossie cried "So you may as well stop here, Sam." But Sam was all ready halfway down the stairs.

"What's your mind made up to do?" Mary Rose asked her. "To keep on running around with Mr. Dexter the way you have been?"

Flossie eyed her sullenly. "I don't see where it's any of your business what I'm going to do, Miss Rose," she said. "So you may as well dry up and blow away."

She turned her back on her and walked over to the mirror between the windows. She hummed as she began to fluff powder over her small, saucy nose.

"You make me nervous, staring at me like an owl!" she threw over her shoulder, presently. "I was [illegible] and let me do my [illegible]

Mary Rose couldn't restrain a laugh. "[illegible] work! This place [illegible] look as if it had been the result of work in it since Miss MacFarlane left!" she said.

She came across the room to Flossie, and turned toward her so that she could look full into the stubborn little face.

"You're turning Sam down because of Mr. Dexter, aren't you?" she asked.

Flossie closed her eyes and [illegible] to keep back the [illegible] that she was only a little thing and [illegible]

A Trump Card

"And you're a little fool," the older girl went on, as if Flossie had answered her. "You're nothing more to him than an amusement—something a little more exciting than his game of golf or—"

"Shut up!" Flossie snapped at her, opening her blazing blue eyes. She stamped her foot. "Don't you dare to talk that way to me! Why, Hilary Dexter [illegible] him! [illegible] thrust her face, dead white with anger, close to her sister's.

And with one supreme effort she tore herself away from Mary Rose. The room was between them.

Mary Rose shook her head. "No he'll never marry you, Floss," she said, and her voice was so low and level that Flossie listened to her. It was the voice people use when they are telling the truth to children.

"He'll never marry you or any one else," she went on. "If his wife wanted to divorce him, he'd do everything he could to keep her from doing it. Do you know why?"

Flossie shook her head the tiniest bit.

"Because she's not only his wife. She stands for a lot of other things in his family, and his friends, and his position in the world." Mary Rose told her sense-ly. "He may not love her, but he loves those things. They're what he's been working to have all his life. Can't you see that?"

Flossie closed her eyes and laughed her cold little rippling laugh.

"Have you really lived twenty-two years without finding out that what a man says when he's in the world is a thrill, Angel-child?" she asked sneeringly. "If he'll make you feel any better I'll tell you something—Dex told me last night that he can't live without me and that he isn't going to try to much longer!"

"But that doesn't mean that he's going to divorce his wife to marry you," Mary Rose said in that same level voice. Suddenly she put her hand into her pocket and drew out Flossie's gold vanity case.

"For Pete's sake! Where did you get that?" Flossie asked in surprise. "I thought I'd lost it."

"You left in it Mr. Hilary Dexter's car last night," her sister answered. "I got it from Mrs. Hilary Dexter!"

"Right, first time, Jak[illegible] York. He's been seen about the Flats [illegible] you know where that is with a French dame called Jackie. Jake is tired of the cow country and found Chicago dull. I'm sending you after him.

The only drawback is the fact that we have no pictures of the bride and he's next at disguise. Now, listen, Enright: We've got to get Jake Schill's story. This paper's a scandal and several Sunday schools have bid in to take it over as their official organ. We need a lively yarn such as Jake could fur nish us. I'm sending you because you have a small amount of intelligence; the rest have none. If you find him, you can have the news beat. Don't let anything stop you."

Random Shot

Pug's early youth had been spent in the colorful vicinity of Bleecker street and the wharves. So his heart didn't palpitate unduly when he walked into the Greek's place near the Flats and tackled a dish of clams and a mug of the foam-topped brown.

At his elbow an alcoholic voice modestly asked for a dime. Pug slipped the fellow a quarter.

"Who's the swell-lookin' French dame?" demanded Pug. It was a random shot but it hit the mark.

"The one over there with the flame-colored bob? That's Clarice."

"Oh," said Pug, just like that.

That night he followed the fair Clarice to her boarding house. For two days he gave her more time than the most devoted suitor. The third night of his quest Clarice left the Greek's early. Pug followed her to the same place she had visited once before. She was going to buy snow"—and Clarice was not a drug-addict!

The other time she had just stayed a moment and hurried back to her room. Quickly now Pug returned to the rooming house and went to her apartment.

Pug had no fear of exciting suspicion in McCann's boarding house. He had stopped there for two days already. The alley outside Clarice's room was deserted. Pug bent to the keyhole and listened. He smiled triumphantly. There was someone there, someone who breathed heavily, like a man in drugged stupor.

Deftly, recklessly, Pug manipulated a skeleton key.

Darkness Terrible

Inside, the darkness was terrible. From the street a thin bar of light showed at the base of the blind. Always there was that maddening emotionless rise and fall, rise and fall of labored breath.

Pug flashed his light cautiously.

It was a man, a great hulk of a man, sprawled on the bed, his shirt removed exposing hairy arms and chest.

A key grated in the lock. Pug's light went off. Clarice had returned.

Impatiently she shook the sleeping man. He was slow to awaken. She spoke viciously to him: "Quickmen grow; you must get out of here before morning. Jake, do you hear. They'll get you sure."

Pug sprang from behind the head of the bed where he had ducked. Covering them with his gun he edged towards the door. "Yes," he said, "get out as fast as you can, Jake Schill and don't get caught." Then he went hurriedly, leaving them mystified, frightened into haste.

Let Him Go.

"Well?" demanded Brickley. Pug stood boldly before him.

"Yes," said Pug with equal coolness.

"Good! Where is he? Did you have him arrested?"

"No. I let him go."

"You . . ." Brickley reverted to his nautical days and cursed fluently and lurdy. "Get out of here and stay out. You're fired, you . . ."

"All right," agreed Pug. "But before I go, I'd like to tell you that Jake Schill would be sure to get the chair . . . and Jake Schill resembles you faintly . . . and Jake Schill has a gorilla tattooed on his right forearm. That's why I let him go."

Brickley was silent for a long moment. He held out his hand. "Thanks, kid," he said gruffly. "You'll stay, won't you?"

FOXY GRANDPA AND HIS INTERESTING DAILY BEDTIME STORY

By Foxy Grandpa

"WHET may look cowardly," said Bobby, "but I would hate to run into a pack of them."

"It would all depend upon what you had in your hand," said Bunny, snuggling down under the covers and giving a sigh as he closed his pink eyes to dream of a field red with radishes.

"Sure, if you had a gun it would be all right," said Bobby turning over and giving a sigh, too, as he closed his blue eyes.

We were in Ceylon and we could hear the jackals howling in the distance as they approached the town. For in many parts of Ceylon they are the only street-cleaners they have and those ugly jackals are protected by law.

The next day we moved on further out into the country and I thought Bobby would have a fit when, several elephants ran back into the woods when they heard he took of our automobile horn. It was an automobile made in America, by the way.

What a great trip that was and how many strange sights we saw. Bobby's little eyes were tired when night came. But before we went to bed we went for a little walk in the village.

"I hear the Street Cleaning Department in the distance," hushed Bobby, and we stopped and listened. Sure enough there was the howling of the jackals off beyond the town.

"They'll wait until everybody is in bed before they start their work," sneered Bunny. "They can't look anybody in the eye, even if they have the law behind them."

"Don't the children stay up late here, Foxy Grandpa?" asked Bobby.

"Yes, they do stay up late because many little children were playing in the street, although it was quite dark.

"Perhaps they take naps in the afternoon," I suggested. "That reminds me, I think it's about time for a certain young man I know to be going to bed."

"Just let's walk to the end of this street," said Bobby. And I am glad we did, for I will tell you what we saw.

It was a very lonely street and the country started right at the very end of it. I suppose that is what Bobby wanted to see when he suggested going to the end of it.

In the twilight there in front of a shack was a dear little boy, playing with the stick, drawing lines in the dirt, just as you have often done.

We walked nearer to him and just as we were almost up to him there, stealthily looking around the corner, only his pointed nose showing, was a jackal!

I clutched naturally at my hip-pocket to draw out my gun for I feared for the child's life, when Bunny stopped me.

"It's all right," he whispered.

The jackal didn't see us and he was just about to turn around when the little thing raised his stick in the air to beat playfully with it on the earth.

Zip! That jackal turned tail and ran and we never as much as saw his shadow. He ran so fast he didn't stop long enough to make one.

"What do you think of that?" exclaimed Bobby.

"I told you it all depended upon what you had in your hand. Everybody knows that a jackal will run from a child if it has a stick in its hand. I never saw such cowards."

"It's all right if you know these things," yawned Bobby as we turned back to go to bed.

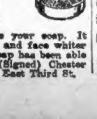
Uses Resinol for boils

First application gives relief

Paintsville, Ky., June 30:—"I had five boils on my neck, and after reading of your treatment for them I used it as directed. I was very much surprised on waking the next morning to find that they were not a bit sore and the swelling was going down fast. I will know the next time what to get when I have a sore of this kind.

I must say that your Resinol Soap is a wonder for cleansing the hands and face. I am a painter, and at the end of my day's work I use your soap. It makes my hands and face whiter than any other soap has been able to do so far." (Signed) Chester E. Vanhoose, 842 East Third St.



THE RHYMING OPTIMIST

By Aline Michaelis

I WONDER if we ever know how lovely is the Earth, how fragrantly the hyacinths blow to match the jonquils' mirth, how green the lindens down the lane, how blue the sky above, how joy comes hasting after pain, until we are in love? This is a miracle that springs forever fresh and fair, deeper it dyes the bluebirds' wings that cleave the clearer air, brighter the willow's budding leaf, softer the south wind's sigh through golden hours, all too brief to hold such ecstasy. I wonder if we ever know the depth of tenderness a mother's patient smile can show, a father's love express, or aught of all the gracious hearts that close about us move to play their humble, daily parts—until we are in love?

TODAY the wind is wild and shrill, the hoary tempest roars past many a snow-enshrouded hill to batter at our doors. Today the hosts of Winter march unchecked across the world, forgotten is the city's blue arch and Summer's flags are furled. Spring now is but a memory where whips were wont to gleam, and in that vanished Arady the rose is but a dream. Yet closer through the gnawing cold, I clasp the thought of May, and dearer, when the blast is bold, I hold each April day. So other memories that shine from out the bygone years finds in my heart a lighted shrine to hygone hopse and tears. And dearer still I told today than April sun and dew, these old sweet thoughts that with me stay, enduring dreams of you!

THE OLD WEST

"Tex Steve," bronzed from the desert's sun,
And alkali baked from a forty-mile run,
Drew rein on his bronc in the town o' Nuppose
As he yipped and whooped to "turn things loose."

A crowd of the boys in Bill Snank's Bar
Had drifted in from near and far;
As the red-eye flowed among the crowd
The pistols cracked, while all grew loud.

There was Red Gulch Pete and Stormy Bliss,
Black Ike Smithy and Gila Joe, too;
Mesa Jack, Sandy, Shorty McGill
(And the bartender's name was just plain Will).

The town would talk for many a day
Of each one's souse—of their noisy play;
The ranchers, too, would sit and tell
What they'd remembered 'afore they fell.

THE NOUVEAU WEST

"Tex Steve," those that are still alive
Are in Shoposee on a Saturday night;
But the scene presents a different sight.

And sells just what the law'll allow;
His radio, with an indoor loop,
Is the only thing that gives a whoop.

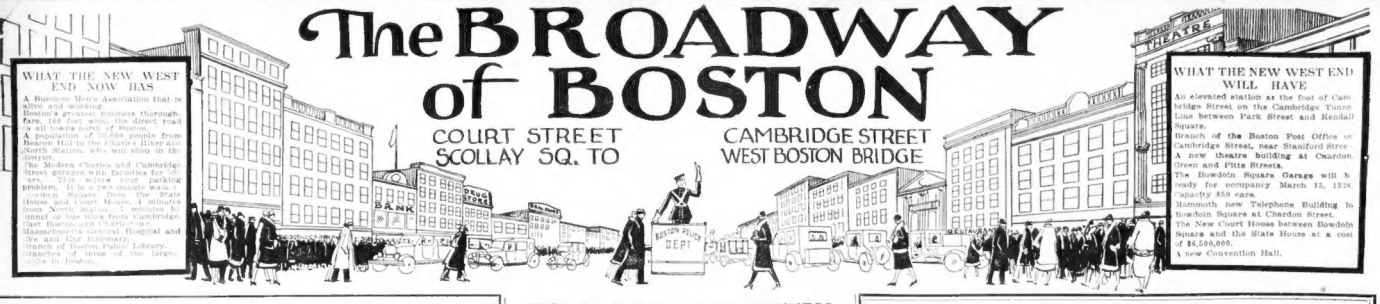
The BROADWAY of BOSTON

COURT STREET SCOLLAY SQ. TO CAMBRIDGE STREET WEST BOSTON BRIDGE



WHAT THE NEW WEST END NOW HAS

A Business Men's Association that is alive and working.
Boston's greatest business thoroughfare, 100 feet wide, the direct road to all points north of Boston.
A population of 50,000 people from Beacon Hill to the Charles River and North Station, who will shop in the district.
The Modern Charles and Cambridge Street garages with facilities for 500 cars. The solve your parking problem. It is a two minute walk to Scollay Square from the State House and Court House, 4 minutes from North Station by automobile by tunnel or bus lines from Cambridge, East Boston and Charlestown.
Massachusetts General Hospital and Eye and Ear Infirmary.
Branch of Boston Public Library.
Branches of three of the largest banks in Boston.

WHAT THE NEW WEST END WILL HAVE

An elevated station at the foot of Cambridge Street on the Cambridge Tunnel Line between Park Street and Kendall Square.
Branch of the Boston Post Office at Cambridge Street, near Staniford Street.
A new theatre building at Charlon, Green and Pitts Streets.
The Bowdoin Square Garage will be ready for occupancy March 15, 1926. Capacity 850 cars.
Mammoth new Telephone Building in Bowdoin Square at Chardon Street.
The New Court House between Bowdoin Square and the State House at a cost of $6,500,000.
A new Convention Hall.

IN THE PATH OF PROGRESS!

The Duvally Building is situated on the corner of Cambridge and Temple Streets, recently christened the "Broadway of Boston." It is in close proximity to the subway, the important business centers of the city, and is easily accessible to the entire metropolitan area.

This modern building is on the busiest corner of Boston's new business district. Boston's other business sections are overcrowded, and it must follow that business will migrate to newer sections.

The district which will bear the brunt of this exodus is the new "Broadway of Boston."

Other stores and offices, just completed, are now ready for occupancy. For information relative to these stores and offices apply to the Pope Company, Inc., 6 Staniford Street. Tel. Hay. 0644, or H. D. Wilson, 6 Temple Street, Hay. 2645.

and the manifold advantages of being located here are obvious.

The Duvally Building is the central point of this district.

Among the tenants of this building are: The National Shawmut Bank, The Temple Drug Co., Dr. Wm. H. Kenney, H. D. Wilson Real Estate.

THE DUVALLY BUILDING

40-48 Cambridge Street—6 Temple Street. Boston, Mass.

THE NEW WEST END BUSINESS MEN'S ASSOCIATION

This association was organized in the late fall of 1925 and has already accomplished wonders for the section.

A large number of the prominent business men of the section are members of the association.

There is absolutely no need for the residents of the New West End going out of the district for any of the necessities of life. From the real estate man who will sell or rent you a home down through the furniture houses, grocery, markets, shoe stores, druggists and dry goods and clothing stores, you are sure of getting a square deal because these men realize that to hold for the future they must and they do give honest values for every dollar spent in their stores.

The National Shawmut Bank have announced that their Bowdoin Sq. branch will be open from 7 to 9 Saturday evenings.

A store that is typical of the New West End is that of the old firm of Marshall Johnson & Son, dealing in fresh and cooked fish. The Broadway of Boston boasts the famous old American House, one of the institutions of the Hub, and also The Argonne, Edwards and Bellevue.

Business men who drive cars will find the Cambridge and Charles Street Garages very convenient and reasonable, and will appreciate the liberal parking space and laws of the district.

We have in Gordon's Scollay Square Olympia one of the largest in New England, and always presenting to the public high-class vaudeville and pictures.

Also the Bowdoin Square Theatre, situated in the heart of this section, playing high grade pictures and vaudeville; the Howard, known the world over as a leading burlesque, vaudeville and picture house; and the Palace Theatre, showing interested Italian pictures and vaudeville.

The Premier Theatre, with its [illegible] adds life to the street and section. Restaurants, such as MacArthur's, The Commonwealth Hotel, and McKeon's Lunch, assure all classes of fresh, home-cooked food.

Anyone desiring information regarding the activities in the New West End should get in touch with publicity manager, A. E. Bucklin, at the Bowdoin Square Branch of the Shawmut Bank, 44 Cambridge St., or any one of the following officers.

DR. NICHOLAS DUVALLY, President.

America's Public Schools Are All Right

Religion Can Be Properly Taught, Plenty of It, in Other Places

Professor Weigle, of Yale, chairman of the Commission on Education, appears to be disturbed by the fact that no actual religion is taught in the public schools. He observes that the "three great branches of religious faith represented in the United States," meaning Protestant, Catholic and Jewish, do not agree on any kind of religious instruction, in the public schools, and therefore there is no religious instruction.

It is a fortunate thing, that as Professor Weigle puts it, the three principal religions "cannot agree on religious instruction." Even if they could agree, their agreement would have no effect.

There are other religions besides the three and there are those that do not want any religion. And under the Constitution of the United States, which separates the Church from the State, and leaves religion to the private individual, every man has a right to send his child to the public school without having anybody else's religion or any "tripartite agreement on religion" forced upon that child.

Religion is necessary to human beings, in the opinion of a great majority of them.

Churches and Sunday schools, and religious schools for those who prefer them to public schools, should supply religion to children, in addition to family teaching.

The public schools of the United States are intended to teach the children those things upon which ALL ARE AGREED. For instance that 3 times 2 are 6, that C-A-T spells cat, that if you take 3 from 3, nothing remains.

The public school should teach children spelling, reading, arithmetic, and the other POSITIVE branches, teach them how to live and take care of themselves wisely. If they do that and teach MENTAL CONCENTRATION, they will do their duty fully.

Every parent has the right to object to his child being taught in the public school some religion other than his own. Every child's parents have a right to object to his being taught ANY RELIGION, in case he doesn't want it taught.

If you send your child to an institution where they teach dancing, how to make boxes, or how to speak foreign languages, you do not expect or demand that RELIGION shall be injected into the dancing or the box making.

There is no reason why religion should be made a part of teaching in the public school, which is intended to obliterate ignorance and give the child an equipment for daily life.

There is too much suggestion for interfering with public schools, or putting religion into public schools, and in short, too little respect for the Constitution of the United States, which separates government from religion.

The public schools are a part, and the most important part, of government.

Every man's religion should be respected, every man has a right to teach his child the religion he chooses, provided he does not deprive that child of necessary secular education.

If the teachers of religion will concentrate on teaching religion, and permit the public schools to concentrate on the other kind of education, it will be a good thing for the country, and in the long run the best possible thing for the various religions.

When any religion seeks to control government in matters outside of its own realm, which is the saving of souls, that religion gets into trouble. History proves that.

Do New Englanders Admire Themselves?

Providence Manufacturer Gives a New Definition of "Conservatism"

Is one of the troubles of the textile industry in New England a fear on the part of capital to invest in modern machinery?

Edmund C. Mayo says it is, and he declares he was told so by "an expert in the industry."

President and general manager of the great Gorham Company, of Providence, Mr. Mayo further expresses the opinion that when people speak of New England conservatism they really mean "pure, unadulterated self-satisfactic- "

This so-called "conservatism," according to the silverware manufacturer, was born of the prosperity of yesterday, when New England manufacturers held a monopoly of both important patents and the country's best skilled labor.

The textile industry in this section, he feels certain—on the authority of the expert referred to—would be in a position to hold its own against increasing competition IF NEW ENGLAND MILLS WOULD THROW OUT THEIR OLD AND BRING IN NEW MACHINERY.

Professing unbounded faith in this region, Mr. Mayo suggests frank SELF-ANALYSIS, probably such a survey as the New England Council has in mind, backed by a determination to overcome both the feeling of self-satisfaction and our fear of investing in up-to-date machinery.

The gentleman is a leader in his line, one of Rhode Island's foremost manufacturers. His views are entitled to consideration.

LANGUAGE AND THE YOUNG CHILD

By Garrett P. Serviss

Noted Astronomer and Writer on Scientific Topics of Popular Interest

THERE is a statement in the address on psychology by Dr. Aftel, the retiring president of the American Association for the Advancement of Science which ought to be taken to heart by mothers and fathers who, whether they will or not, are their children's first and most effective teachers. Dr. Cattell said:

"A child can learn to pronounce its own or a foreign language best at the age of about three years; there is then a step and after about twelve years he cannot learn correct enunciation."

An Imitator

Now, the greatest fault in the talking and speaking of Americans—however, it may be abroad—is faulty enunciation of the vocal sounds that distinguish language from mere inarticulate noises. If the psychologists are right, the only time to provide effectively against this is during the very earliest years, the time when parental and home influences are strongest.

The child is naturally an imitator. It imitates without intention or reflection, by an impulse that comes from unconscious reaction to stimulus; one might say as stretched harp strings respond to aerial vibrations. The delicacy of this response diminishes with increasing age and increasing complexity of experience.

If it be true that the child's inherent power of imitation of vocal sounds is so far worn out at the age of twelve that it can no longer correctly and unconsciously reproduce vocal sounds that are new to it, how great is the responsibility of parents for seeing that during those critical years it shall hear only good language, clearly enunciated and correctly pronounced.

Of course, it is possible only to approximate to such an ideal. But an approximation to a good thing is better than nothing. It is also of us the first step that counts. The earliest response to the stimulus of speech gets the most lasting hold and develops the deepest root. The most come from parents, nurses, and primary school teachers, in the order named. The parent who shirks this responsibility commits a great wrong against the child.

It is not only enunciation and pronunciation of sounds and words that are best learned, if not exclusively learned, in the first plastic years, but habits of speaking also. Try some experiments with your telephone, and study the points of the different voices.

There are some telephone girls whose voices, like those of divas, ought to be a fortune to their owners. Clear and clean-cut as the tones of a perfect bell or of a master's violin, even the hard-of-hearing can not only hear but can enjoy, as an aural pleasure, the "hello," the "number please," and the "here's your party," that issues with such delightful ease and tonal lucidity from the earbox that one might imagine the mechanical diaphragm itself to be pleased with its part.

But you may also hear a different and grating sound, a jumble of unrecognizable syllables.

Vocal Sounds

I remember that when I was about fifteen, at the Johnstown, N. Y., academy, there came at intervals a learned man, who would now, I suppose, be called a "non-resident professor," to teach us the secrets of correct pronunciation and enunciation of English vocal sounds.

I also recall that the instruction seemed to have come too late. We all had our habits of speech already settled, had brought them with us from our homes, and any attempt to imitate the vocal utterances of the professor resulted only in ridicule and laughter.

I do not mean to affirm that voice training even as late as middle life is not effective. It is very effective, but it can not re-awaken the exquisite response to impression that belongs to the vocal organs of the child. That is gone forever, as all of us who have learned foreign languages in school and college are aware.

LISTEN, WORLD!

Reg. U. S. Patent Office

WE'RE beginning to laugh at Success. And, as usual, we say it with slang:

"The Big Butter and Egg Men."—that's what we're calling the heavy winners. Nobody knows whose the expression started, but it's going strong now from Cape Cod to the Golden Gate. And it always carries a grin with it.

"Big Butter and Egg Men"—nothing malicious to that phrase. Nothing peevish nor envious. Just a good-natured chuckle of fat, complacent, stupid success. That's all.

But, when you stop to think about it, that's plenty. It's an indication of a tremendous revolution in our viewpoint.

For we Americans haven't been given to chuckling at success.

No indeed. Far from it. Success has hitherto received our most enthusiastic support and reverent attention. It was the one thing we Americans didn't laugh at. We preached it from our pulpits and service club luncheon tables; we extolled its beauty in our schools; we judged our fellow man by his ability or inability to attain its shining ranks.

And we had nothing but contempt and loathing for any plan that didn't make Success its ultimate goal.

The aim in life was to Put Yourself Across—Make the Grade—With Both Feet—etc., etc.

We certainly were strong for Success. And we're strong for it yet. One slang phrase doesn't make a revolution. But we are beginning to poke fun and call them "Big Butter and Egg Men."

We're beginning to see that a fat pocketbook doesn't excuse a fat head.

We're beginning to realize that the lad with the noisy money isn't necessarily a discerning or gallant chap, and we're almost ready to acknowledge that the inefficient, shabby little cuss who has given his life for a vision may be a bigger success than the bimbo who has cleaned up on lard and oil.

And it's gradually dawning on us that there's something decidedly un-American about this worship of comfort and kale—something that doesn't fit in with the picture of those lean fighting zealots who founded this country or that utterly insolvent young man whose religion we profess to follow.

Yes, we're laughing at last at the Big Butter and Egg Man.

So maybe, in a thousand years or so, we'll get around to seeing that there's something to life besides butter and eggs.

A WIFE'S MEDITATIONS

By Helen Rowland

ALAS, the younger generation seem to have turned the graceful fencing game of love into a wrestling match!

Every girl thinks that she will die when love is dead—but, thank heaven there are lots of things to live for, between the last kiss and the last breath!

The trouble with this world is that every "poor fish" wants to be a Big Fish—and every big fish wants the whole aquarium!

A man is never really contented. As soon as he stops worrying about his heart, he begins worrying about his waistline—as soon as he ceases to be tempted by forbidden women, he begins to be tempted by forbidden food.

An old-fashioned woman is one who remembers when a man began his courtship by kissing your fingertips instead of by waving them at you with a tackle—and when there were lots of thrills between the first glance and the first kiss.

Warning a man against anything dangerous, from a drink to a woman, is like telling a small boy on which shelf you've put the fruit-cake that he "mustn't touch."

A woman is young until the day when she stops fearing that men will deceive her and begins wishing they would.

CAN MURDER EVER BE JUSTIFIED?

By DR. FRANK CRANE

A DOCTOR in Littleton, Colorado, having reached an advanced age and having taken care of his daughter all her life meticulously, killed her because she was without arms and legs and she was deaf and dumb.

He did not want to leave her as a charge upon the community.

He makes no bones about admitting the fact that he chloroformed his daughter, and his attorneys defend him in his petition, holding that the girl was without a soul and she was not a reasonable creature.

It is held therefore that the father is not guilty of the crime of murder.

Some time ago a girl was acquitted who slew her husband because he was stricken with a fatal disease. He asked her to do it. The court found her guiltless.

This brings up the question as to whether we ever have the right to take human life under any circumstances.

As a rule it is a basic principle of English law that human life is sacred and never should be taken, except for crime. The supposition is that there is always a chance for the afflicted one to recover and we have no right to take the matter in our own hands. To put a termination to human life is reserved for the Deity and a man has no right to assume the undertaking.

Those who try this person, therefore, for killing his daughter will have a nice point to decide—the point whether it is ever advisable or justifiable to deprive an afflicted person of life. It will look as though a person who has no arms or legs and who is without power of speech and hearing is past help and it is a mercy to put such a one out of existence.

But it is very hard to elevate this single instance into a general law.

Meanwhile the elderly father, aged seventy-two, will have the sincerest sympathy of the public, as he doubtless did what his conscience directed him to in the case of this thirty-two-year-old daughter.

It is one thing to uphold the law, but it should not restrain us from exercising our sympathy in single instances. In fact, the law recognizes that its general rules are not without exception. It has courts of chancery or equity to decide such matters as come within the interstices of the law.

"You Said It, Marceline!"

By MARCELINE D'ALROY

ON "TOO MUCH TALK."

SOME GIRLS are really
VERY CYNICAL, over
MEN. They not only
DON'T BELIEVE what
A man TELLS THEM,
They ACTUALLY don't Believe in MEN!
When THIS is so, they Have PROBABLY listened
To TOO MANY MEN
TALKING
About THEMSELVES or
About WOMEN. For
This is ALL some men
DO talk about, if
One PREVENTS THEM from Talking SHOP.
MEN who have A LOT
To SAY have LITTLE
Time to ACT.
And the MODERN GIRL
Looks a man for ACTION.
WOMEN CAN TALK.
But TIMES ARE CHANGING.
GIRLS now CALL MEN UP,
Invite THEM out, drive
THEM home, kiss THEM
Good night, and to add
The final masculine touch,
Five minutes later they
HAVE FORGOTTEN THEM!
Isn't it terrible?

MEDBURY SAYS—

By John P. Medbury

A BIG jewelry firm in Chicago has stopped selling engagement rings on the installment plan. They find that most of the girls who receive them are unable to keep up with the payments.

THEY figure that no fellow should ever fall in love on credit.

ROMANCE should come C. O. D.

WHY should the jewelry stores give terms when you can't even open a charge account with the minister?

PREACHERS can't afford to have bookkeeping departments.

A PARSON will tie you together but all knots must be cash.

NO man would appreciate his wife if he got her on deferred payments.

A FELLOW shouldn't ask a girl to marry him if he has to propose to her on credit.

ONE man took his sweetheart on his lap when his trousers weren't even paid for.

FLAUNTING YOUTH SHOULD STOP, LOOK, LISTEN

Do you ever think of disciplining yourself?

You are out from under paternal control. Do you ever try to control yourself?

Oh, you didn't see any need for curbing your leanings and desires—got enough of that as a child, eh?

Don't you know that more momentous questions are bound to come to you now than ever puzzled you in your childhood days?

Your inclinations may be one way and your common sense may indicate the directly opposite course.

What shall you do under such circumstances?

If you have shed all thoughts of discipline you will probably go the easiest way; let things take the easiest course.

If you have real brains you will think the matter over and try to pull away from the thing which you know is liable to engulf you.

But you don't want to offend friends.

You don't want to say "NO" to yourself.

You think it shows weakness to show caution and you are not clever enough to proceed safely without caution. What are you going to do about it?
